Where Is Santa Claus?
Bank, or Rail Stock?
4 Spades, or Starry Heavens,
Japan Breaks It Gently.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHRISTMAS TOMORROW, last chance of 1931 to increase happiness and diminish the depression.

Millions of children, fortunately for their young imaginations, still believe that Santa Claus exists, and will see them, if they are good.

Millions of adults HOPE the prosperity Santa Claus is not dead permanently and will resume his visits if we show intelligence.

WALL STREET, trying to take its sorrows humorously, tells this among other end of the year anecdotes. An experienced trader, asked "If you had any money to invest would you rather buy the stock of a certain great bank, or that of a certain great railroad?" replied:

"I should buy the bank stock, because I think a year from now it will be carrying more people than the railroad."

DR. CHARLES GRAY SHAW, teacher of philosophy in New York University, who recently said those that whistle are morons, now tells the world he thinks little of bridge. The contract bridge match he calls "one of the most disagreeable features of the present depression," and adds that bridge "weakens life's emotions."

People play cards, he says, "to stimulate their limp nerves," and recalls that "cards were invented to amuse a jaded monarch."

CONTEMPLATION OF the heavens that declare the glory of God is nobler than contemplation of four spades, three diamonds, two hearts and four clubs, with no "tops" among them.

But the French say truly:

"Chacun prend son bonheur ou il le trouve."* "Each takes his happiness where he finds it."

"The starry firmament and the moral nature of man" interest some of us. Others are interested in a "full house" or an "inside straight." We cannot all be alike."

LITTLE BY little, Japan tells the world, including the league and this meddlesome country, her intentions in Manchuria. She gives it out gently, to avoid sudden shock, suggesting the kind-hearted man who cut off his dog's tail half an inch at a time, not having the heart to cut it all off at once.

Having invested more than a thousand million dollars in Manchuria, Japan proposes to take the place and keep it, to protect her investment, getting rid of bandits, running the country on a business basis.

If the League of Nations and Uncle Sam don't like it, they may lump it.

OUR FRIENDS in Europe, including the British, like the Japanese, are supplying their bad news in small installments. The latest is that England proposes to demand a revision of her debt to us, "OR VEN REPUDIATION." You soon forget about your back being "against the wall," but paying debts continues to be uncomfortable.

A LATE Associated Press dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, yesterday, reads:

"Germany will be unable to make the conditional reparation payment due at the expiration of the Hoover debt holiday, the Young Plan Advisory Committee asserts in its final report adopted tonight."

That Germany admittedly cannot pay sums that she promised as a conquered nation is now plain even to those that were to get the money.

DEPARTMENT STORE owners are interested in the fact that a great New York establishment controlled by John S. Burke, in November and December, 1931, has passed the 1930 record in number of sales and gross receipts.

Newspaper publishers are interested in Mr. Burke's statement that improved conditions, in spite of depression, are attributed largely to aggressive newspaper advertising. Mr. Burke hereafter will save money spent on costly circulars, and other store literature distributed through the mails, and add the amount saved, hundreds of thousands a year, to productive advertising in daily newspapers.

SENATOR BORAH demands that all salaries paid by the United States above $2,000 be cut 10 per cent. That would apply to Representatives, Senators, members of the cabinet, Judges, everybody.

Senator Borah is more concerned about what the people think in Idaho, and other places remote from Washington, than about opinions and feelings of those with whom he associates at the capital. His suggestion is unselfish, since it would cut his own income, and he is not a rich man.

BUT WITH ALL the gold we have, all the money, this country ought to be able to solve its problems without slashing wages or salaries, just as it ought to be able to prevent hunger while it has 200,000,000 bushels of wheat stored away, and farms rich in cattle at low prices.

CAIN NAMES VETERAN TO TAX JOB

Brown Given Rich Plum as Delinquent Collector; Succeeds Walter Christy

John Brown, Jr., of Emeworth, wartime buddy of Capt. Robert S. Cain, today landed one of the richest plums in the local political game. He was appointed County Delinquent Tax Collector by Treasurer-elect Cain, to succeed Walter J. Christy.

The appointment of Brown was a big surprise to the political dopesters. Little had been heard of him during eight years he had been on the county force and the guessers had assigned the delinquent tax office plum to various others, better known.

Brown, a native Allegheny countian, served in the Spanish-American War in Porto Rico and in the Philippines with the Fifth United States Cavalry. He served with Cain in the 111th Infantry during the World War. He was assistant county paymaster for four years and assistant cashier in the Sheriff's office for four years. He is a member of various Masonic bodies.

He resides with his wife and daughter at 156 Center avenue, Emsworth.

ARMSTRONG'S WILL FILED

The will of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong was filed for probate today. The estate, as anticipated, when Senator Joseph G Armstrong took administration papers several days ago, is estimated at $80,000.

The will leaves the estate to the five children.

In his own handwriting, on a sheet of plain paper, the late political leader wrote the terms February 1, 1927, three years before he had married his second wife, Mrs. Ethel Wilson.

The wife is not mentioned in the document, but under the law receives one-third of the estate. Otherwise the children will divide the estate, except for Armstrong's insurance, which was left to a son, William, "on account of his bad health."

State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., was named administrator several days ago, the wife having renounced her rights. The other children are Mrs. Edna Bird Kauffield, Mrs. Frances E. Lemmon, Dorothy and William Armstrong.

Gibson Will Head U. S. Arms Group

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Gibson, ambassador to Belgium and head of America's delegations to the preparatory disarmament commission, will be selected by President Hoover as a delegate to the Geneva arms conference, it was learned today.

Mary Emma Wooley, president of Mt. Holyoke College, first woman to serve at such an important parley of nations, was named yesterday as a delegate.

Tug Feared Lost, Steams Into Port

PORT ANGELES, Wash., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—While United States and Canadian patrol boats searched heaving seas off Cape Flattery for her, the tug Roosevelt, with 12 men aboard, escaped the fury of a storm and reached shelter in Neah Bay safely today.

Nothing had been heard from her since she messaged "for God's sake, hurry," last night.

Wooden-Gun Bandit Foiled by Girl Clerk In Downtown Store

MISS FRANCES SCHOTT

When Miss Schott, 23, screamed at a midnight order to "hold them up," former Constable Henry Warner captured Suspect James McCaffery, accused of attempting the holdup of Boreman's drug store, Liberty avenue.

'Hill' Man Confesses He Tried Robbery to Buy Child Gift

With a wooden gun James McCaffery, of 606 Congress street, admitted in Central Police Court today he tried to hold up the girl cashier of Boreman's drug store at Liberty avenue and Stanwix street last midnight.

McCaffrey said he wanted money to buy a Christmas present for his daughter.

When the cashier, Frances Schott, 23, heard McCaffery's command to "hold them up," she pressed a hidden button which summoned other clerks. McCaffery fled, but was captured after a chase by a former constable, Henry Warner, 12 Ainesworth street.

McCaffery was held for court on a charge of attempted robbery.

Brushing aside a number of women who blocked his flight, a robber eluded pursuit early last night after holding up and robbing the manager and clerk of the Porter-McCune Company, wholesale grocers, at 119 South Eight-

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Suspected of having stolen a Christmas tree, a man identified as Woodrow Schumaker, 25, was shot and killed by one of three policemen as he fled in an automobile early today.

DANDELIONSBUD FOR YULETIDE

A green Christmas with dandelions blooming in the countryside will greet Santa Claus when he arrives on his annual visit tomorrow.

Cloudy weather, with slightly lower temperatures, is forecast, but no likelihood of snow. The rain will cease tonight, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. The low point of the mercury tomorrow will be in the 30s.

Not since 1881 and 1882, when outdoor picnics were held on Christmas and New Year's, has there been such a mild early winter, Brotzman asserted. The excess for the month thus far is 174 degrees and for the year to date 628 degrees.

The dandelions were reported by South Hills residents.

Pittsburgh Doctor Flies To Ohio, Saves Girl

A Pittsburgh physician brought happiness into a home in Steubenville, O., by making an airplane trip to the Ohio city and performing a delicate operation on a 4-year-old girl.

Answering a summons from Dr. C. W. Sunseri, of Steubenville, Dr. A. J. Guerinot, of the Westinghouse Building, a specialist, flew to Steubenville late yesterday. He removed a pin which had become lodged in the throat of Josephine Potachini, 4.

After completing the operation, Dr. Guerinot returned to Pittsburgh.

King George and Ex-Kaiser To Celebrate; Russia in Anti-Religious Campaign

International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 24.—The United States of America is the only country in the world involved in recent international meetings that has not forgotten the name of God, Pope Pius XI told the cardinals here today in responding to their Christmas greetings. His Holiness declared:

"The name of God seems to have been forgotten recently in all the international meetings, with but one exception—the United States. On Thanksgiving Day that nation recalled the benefits God had shown it and that great country alluded to the universal beneficence of God to the world."

The Pontiff alluded sorrowfully to the world-wide economic crisis, saying that he was "overjoyed at the success of the appeal made in my last encyclical." He pointed out that the Vatican is now employing 5,000 workmen, "doing work that is not of an urgent nature."

The nations of the world must declare anew their determination to bring about peace and disarmament, the Pope declared.

EYES ON BETHLEHEM

BETHLEHEM, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—The eyes of the Christian world turned once again toward Bethlehem today. In the ancient Church of the Nativity, built over the traditional spot where Christ was born, the first of a series of Christmas services will be held at midnight.

Pilgrims from all over the world will crowd into the edifice to hear mass said by the Latin patriarch, assisted by gorgeously robed prelates, acolytes and choristers.

Below, in the Grotto of the Nativity, hundreds of devout will file past a marble manger, sym-

"The Rest Is Calvary"

by George P. Phair

Humble of heart, upon this blessed day
The world pays homage to the Prince of Peace.
One day alone, the wretched wranglings cease.
The grisly schemes of state are laid away.

Mankind emerges from the common clay
A little while to lift his thorny crown.
To ease the cross that bears his shoulders down.
And then the morrow comes, a rack of gray.

Strife rears its head again by land and sea.
The Star of Bethlehem is blotted out.
The dogs of war resume their snarling rout.
One day of grace—the rest is Calvary.

And what more blessed morn than this to pray
That life might be an endless Christmas Day!

Third Party Public's Hope If Democrats and G. O. P. Remain Blind

Several distinguished leaders of the Democratic party after much intellectual travail have evolved as the Democratic watchword for 1932 the phrase:

"Hee haw! We are coming back!"

If the Democratic party is a joke and its emblem properly a jackass, then the motto selected is appropriate enough.

But what kind of a motto is "Hee haw! We are coming back!" for a party of high patriotic principle and of sincere resolve to serve the public and the nation.

Imagine Mr. Jefferson, creator of the Declaration of Independence and founder of the Democratic party; or Mr. Madison, inspiring author of the federalist papers; or Mr. Monroe, sponsor of the patriotic Monroe doctrine; or Gen. Jackson, the hero of New Orleans and of the greater battle against the United States Bank; or Mr. Cleveland, who protected the American people from privileged power and maintained the integrity of the western hemisphere from foreign aggression,—

Imagine the great leaders of the great party which outlined the fundamental principles of our government and more than doubled the extent and importance of our country, devising as a fit expression of their principles and their purpose, the truly asinine motto:

"Hee haw! We are coming back!"

But the Democratic party of today has no leaders and apparently no principles.

The Republican party is a discredited failure, and the Democratic party a contemptible imitation of a discredited failure.

The Republican party is going out of power because it has followed Mr. Hoover; and the Democratic party is trying to come into power by following the same blind leadership.

When the blind lead the blind, both fall into the ditch; and when the blind lead the dumb the same catastrophe occurs.

Mr. Hoover is an internationalist of the Wilson order, and that means the order which got us into the great war and is still trying to involve us further into the costs of it and the consequences of it.

Mr. Roosevelt is the same kind of an internationalist and so is Mr. Baker, and so is Mr. Ritchie, and so is Mr. Al Smith,—all Wall street internationalists,—all more interested in foreign nations and Wall street investments in foreign bonds than they are in the welfare of the American people.

The hope of the Republican party is in Calvin Coolidge. The hope of the Democratic party is in John N. Garner.

Failing these, the hope of the public is in a third party.

Hee haw! Perhaps the jackasses are NOT coming back.

INSTITUTIONS HERE GIVEN BEQUESTS

Court Authorizes Payment Of Sums Designated in Steel Magnate's Will

Christmas gifts to many Pittsburgh charitable institutions as well as to Harvard and Princeton universities were contained in a decree of Orphans Court today distributing $1,262,646 of the estate of Henry Clay Frick, coke and steel magnate.

Miss Helen C. Frick, a daughter, receives $160,212 under the distribution.

Other beneficiaries and amounts received follow:

H. C. Frick Educational Fund Commission, $123,240; Mercy Hospital, $123,240; Princeton University, $369,720; Harvard University, $123,240; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $123,240; Society of the Lying-In Hospital, New York, $36,972; the following institutions $12,324 each, Children's Hospital, Pittsburgh; Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh, and Allegheny Home for the Friendless, Kingsley House Association, Pittsburgh Free Dispensary, Pittsburgh Newsboys' Home, West Penn Hospital, Central Y. W. C. A., Uniontown Hospital, Connellsville State Hospital, Westmoreland Hospital, Greensburg; Braddock General Hospital, Homestead Hospital.

Today's distribution was the final one of the Frick estate. Previously the same beneficiaries had received approximately $3,000,000 in the same proportions.

QUIT JOBS OVER DEER MEAT

Failure of employes of the State Game Commission to receive a share of deer taken by game protectors was one of the reasons back of the latest rumpus in the commission, which resulted in five of eight members resigning, according to information made public at the Governor's office today.

Four employes of the commission, including an office boy, filed "charges" with Gov. Pinchot against the commission, one of the complaints being that they had not received any deer meat, but that it had all been given to hospitals. The four were dismissed as disloyal by the commission. The Governor demanded their reinstatement. The resignations followed.

Those who stepped out were Ross L. Leffler, of McKeesport, president; Jared M. B. Reis, New Castle; Harry C. Stackpole, St. Mary's; Francis H. Coffin, Scranton, and J. A. Beck, Williamsport. Remaining members are Dr. W. H. Moore, Philadelphia; Adolph Muller, Norristown, and R. E. Reitz, Brookville. Councilman John M. Phillips quit during Pinchot's administration in a squabble over an order demanding personal observance of the dry laws.

Park Denies He Will Subpena Schooley

Without qualification, District Attorney Andrew T. Park today denied a report that he would subpena Roy D. Schooley, deposed City Treasurer, to testify before the grand jury when that jury takes up the investigation of the Treasurer's office next week.

Park's statement:

"I have not subpenaed Schooley to appear before the grand jury and have no intention of doing so."

WIFE OF KIDNAP SUSPECT HELD

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ethel DePew, wife of Martin DePew, wanted in Kansas City for the kidnaping last week of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy manufacturer, was arrested today when she arrived at the home of her sister here.

Mrs. DePew was arrested on the orders of Sheriff Arthur Rabb, who took her from the county jail to an unannounced destination for questioning.

Mrs. Depew was reported to have told Sheriff Rabb that she had left her husband at Buffalo, N. Y., and that he had gone to Canada when they separated yesterday, after he had revealed himself as the principal in the Donnelly kidnaping.

Sheriff Rabb said Mrs. Depew told him she had been employed three days in the Donnelly home as a nurse during the holidays last Christmas, but said she informed her husband she was "not going another step" with him when she learned of his connection with the kidnaping.

FOOCHOW, China, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Harriet Halverstadt, of Wellington, Kan., a missionary, was captured by bandits today.

Soviet Bares Assassins' War Plot

MOSCOW, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—A sensational plot to assassinate the Japanese ambassador to Soviet Russia, M. Hirota, with the object of provoking war between Russia and Japan, was officially disclosed here tonight.

An employe of the commissariat of transport, an official statement said, reported that he had been urged by "a member of a diplomatic mission at Moscow" to arrange for Hirota's assassination, which "would certainly provoke war between Russia and Japan."

Judge Soffel Revokes Edict Taking Child From Mother

This Christmas will be a joyous one for Mrs. Louise Williams O'Leary and her 3-year-old son, "Sonny." Sonny, who was taken by the home-finding department of the Juvenile Court by order of Judge Sara M. Soffel more than a week ago, was returned to his mother yesterday. Mrs. Martin Noah, Jr., of 1415 Margaret street, Munhall, with whom Mrs. O'Leary is living following eviction from her home, said:

"We're so glad to have him back. When we saw him yesterday we couldn't help crying—it was so wonderful. I don't know where he was while he was away. He must have been in a very good home, though, because he was very clean when we got him and had had breakfast."

The day after "Sonny" was taken from her, Mrs. O'Leary found a job, Mrs. Noah revealed.

At a hearing before Judge Soffel yesterday, a plea for the return of the child was made by Attorney A. C. Hetts.

COUNTY LEGISLATORS WRANGLE FOR HOURS OVER JOB RELIEF

ASK GOVERNOR TO CALL NEW PARLEY

Members Fail to Agree on How to Aid Jobless of State; Disagree Over Tax

By MARK SHIELDS

In a resolution adopted last night at a meeting of legislators from Allegheny County and adjoining counties, as well as citizens of all shades of opinion, Gov. Pinchot is asked to call a conference of civic and political leaders in an effort to reach a workable compromise plan for adequate unemployment relief.

Adoption of the resolution followed three hours of discussion and declamation in the Bar Association rooms in City-County Building and came after two-thirds of the legislators had gone home in the same bewilderment which has surrounded them for the six weeks of the special session.

SENATORS IN DISPUTE

During the discussion it developed that even Senators after six weeks in Harrisburg were unable to agree within $75,000,000 as to how much money in the state treasury is available for relief. Senator Rial, of Westmoreland County, approximated the treasury balance at $85,000,000. Senator Mansfield, Allegheny, explained that every cent of this money was allocated to state expenses and that at the end of the present biennium the state will be in the red $10,000,000.

That divergence of opinion was indicative of the chaos in which the meeting became involved. Called by Senator Morris Einstein at the instance of Senator Frank J. Harris, author of the resolution adopted, the meeting was intended to inform legislators of unemployment solutions in the minds of average citizens.

NO PLAN ADVANCED

At the conclusion of the meeting no plan had been advanced, though there was a unanimous demand for relief—most of the speakers insisting that it should be provided by some magic without any tax increases.

Representative Fred Gangloff, of Coraopolis, moved that the legislators be instructed to seek relief revenue through a tax on amusements and bank checks, but consideration of this suggestion was shut off when Harris asked action on his resolution.

At periods during the meeting so-called radicals and conservatives jangled, and Einstein used all his diplomacy to preserve an even balance. Claims of legislators that the Talbot bill, for $10,000,000 in direct relief, which the Governor will permit to become a law without his signature, was unconstitutional, brought the radicals to the fore in a new role.

TALBOT BILL BACKED

They presented themselves as champions of that arch-conservative, former Senator George Wharton Pepper, who rendered to the Republican organization an opinion that the bill was legal, thus taking issue with Attorney General William A. Schnader. The argument was advanced that the Constitution should be nullified through recognition of a "state of war," this coming from extreme advocates of civil liberties.

Mansfield clarified the discussion with an observation that no person should go home with the belief that relief could be afforded without additional taxation.

In addition to the Allegheny County delegation legislators present included Senators Weingartner, Parkinson, Rial, Bell and Painter, and Representatives Patterson, Richards, McKenna, Black, Reader, Brahm and Denman.

Pleas for relief were presented by several speakers. Rabbi Samuel Goldenson declaring that the problem was large enough to demand the attention of state and nation.

TALBOT COURT TEST SURE

HARRISBURG, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The Talbot $10,000,000 direct appropriation measure which will become a law Saturday through failure of Gov. Pinchot to act on it, will have its constitutionality tested by court action.

Legal experts today indicated that Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, secretary of welfare, would not make any requisitions for payments in view of Attorney General William A. Schnader's ruling that the bill is unconstitutional. Some board or agency directly affected by the bill will then institute a mandamus suit in the local court against Mrs. Liveright. Regardless of the decision, an appeal would be taken, either by the state or the parties instituting the mandamus action, to the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Representative D. Glenn Moore, administration floor leader in the House, today said that members of the Legislative League are questioning the continuation of the "farce" of the special session called for unemployment relief. He said:

"We are agreed that the Legislature might as well adjourn if an agreement on relief is not reached immediately."

enth street. The loot, according to police, amounted to $200.

Malcom Fisher, manager, of 218 Amanda avenue, and Charles Reed, clerk, of 130 North Negley avenue, were the only occupants of the store during the holdup.

Burglarly of the Evy Linn Frock and Dress shop, at 534 Smithfield street, was believed frustrated today by arrival of Patrolman Edward McCall, making his early morning rounds. McCall said he found a basement and front door jimmied. Nearby was Frank Fickley, 25, of 175 St. Joseph street. He was arrested on a suspicious person charge.

ROB RESTAURANT

Two men held up the Rainbow Koffee Shop, 330 Penn avenue, and escaped with $50 from the cash register, Frank Marcus, waiter, told police.

W. C. Swartzley, of 180 Hutchinson street, sitting in a parked automobile at Commercial and Whipple street, was robbed of $8 by two armed bandits.

Lillian Rutherford, of 209 Riefert street, reported to police that while her automobile was parked at Tenth and Carson streets, two suits of silk pajamas valued at $15 and a purse valued at $8 were stolen by thieves.

'LEGS' KILLING SUSPECT HELD

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 24.—(INS)—Sought for six days for questioning in connection with the slaying of Jack (Legs) Diamond, Sylvester Hess, of Watervelt, surrendered to the authorities today.

Hess was one of the two men, outside the actual killers, who was with Diamond less than an hour before three bullets were fired through the rum-soaked brain of the gangster as he slept unguarded in a Dove street rooming house.

Hess was released after being grilled about his movements after he stepped out of the taxi in which Diamond was being taken from his last tryst with Marion (Kiki) Roberts to what turned out to be the gangster's tryst with death.

Yaule Mail Awaits On Hunt for Serum

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 24.—(INS)—In the next to the last pouch in four carloads of mail was found the pneumonia serum that may save the life of Howard Tustin.

For hours Tustin's life hung in the balance while frantic postal clerks suspended all handling of Christmas mail and searched for the little package that had been ordered from Seattle.

Richard Dix Accused As U. S. Tax Dodger

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Richard Dix, screen star, whose real name is Ernest C. Brimmer, was charged with evading payment of approximately $31,925 in income tax for the years 1927 and 1928, in an information filed in Federal Court here yesterday.

Police Play Santa In East Pittsburgh

East Pittsburgh police assumed the role of Santa Claus to more than 1,200 destitute children when they distributed shoes and stockings to needy families throughout the borough late yesterday.

The shoes and stockings, more than 1,200 pairs, were purchased with the proceeds from a benefit dance held by the police department.

2 SHOT, REFUSE TO NAME FOES

Refusing to name his assailant, Frank Toth, 47, a roomer at 1114 Crawford street, Duquesne, was in a critical condition in McKeesport Hospital today suffering from two bullet wounds in his left chest, one a few inches above his heart.

According to police, Toth said the shooting occurred about a mile below Duquesne. Following the shooting, he is believed to have walked home and gone to bed. He was found in his room nearly an hour later by a housekeeper.

John Hohman, 45, of 815 Linden avenue, East Pittsburgh, is in Braddock Hospital where police say he refused to tell how he was shot. He was found in an alley in East Pittsburgh with a bullet wound in his abdomen.

BOMBS WRECK HOMES; ONE MAN FLEES

Duquesne and Sewickley Neighborhoods Rocked by Blasts; Pet Dog Killed

Two time bomb explosions early today demolished a house in Dravosburg and partially wrecked another in Sewickley, half a block from fashionable Beaver road.

No one was injured in either blast, but windows in many houses in a wide radius were shattered.

Hurling the front portion of the home of Mike Repeple, of Ravine street, near Duquesne avenue, Dravosburg, across the street, the blast reduced the building—a three-story frame structure—to splinters.

PET DOG DIES

The house was unoccupied except for a pet dog which was found dead in the ruins. Mrs. Repeple and four children left Dravosburg early yesterday for Clairton to spend the holidays. Later County Detective Joseph Bodner arrested Repeple and turned him over to the fire marshal. Bodner said Repeple left the house early today.

Chief of Police Charles Livingstone, of Dravosburg, fired two shots at a man he saw running from the scene. Russell Hopkins, of Fifth street, told Chief Livingstone that a short time before the ex[illegible] an automobile with five occupants sped past him in the direction of the Repeple home.

Repeple had been unemployed for more than a year and is said to have carried $6,500 insurance on the property.

BLAMED ON RAID

Sewickley police attributed the blasting of the home of Mary Massi, at 330 McCready way, to a raid one of the Massi family recently caused upon a neighboring moonshine joint when he fell from a tree while intoxicated, police said.

The explosion wrecked the front part of the home, destroying the porch and demolishing windows in neighboring houses and the Sewickley Riding Academy stable nearby. Mrs. Massi, her daughter, Josephine Alemeno, 25, and son-in-law, Albert Alemeno, 30, were the only occupants of the house at the time. Carl, 16, had just parked his automobile in front of the building and walked down the street when the neighborhood was shaken by the blast.

Fire swept through the Penner's Clothing Shop, First street and Grant avenue, Duquesne, early today, with an estimated loss of $7,000.

FOUR PAROLES YULE GIFTS

Paroles were granted today by Judge James H. Gray in Criminal Court so that four prisoners could spend Christmas with their families.

Mabel Daugherty, 26, of 229 Gregg street, Monongahela, who several months ago pleaded guilty to the theft of $4,000 from the Fulton Theater, was paroled on condition that she return to her home in Monongahela and listen to her mother. Miss Daugherty was a ticket seller at the theater.

Tony Carozza, 40, of Clairton, father of five, who on May 23 was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter, was paroled for eight years. He fatally stabbed John Perticone, 26, also of Clairton.

Joseph Bentz, 26, of 3060 Wayne street, and Frank Szwssodek, 34, of 346 Harmar street, found guilty several months ago of violation of the election laws, were paroled for six months.

Romance Conquers; $10,000 Bride Now To Marry for Love

MISS MARY ($10,000) CLOWES . . . . . MARRYING FOR LOVE!

New Eagle 'Auction' Girl Engaged to Beauty Shop Man

Mary Clowes, the attractive 21-year-old blonde who wanted to marry for money, is going to marry for love—free of charge.

A childhood sweetheart, who, hearing of Mary's offer to wed for $10,000, offered her financial aid, is the prospective bridegroom. He is W. G. Stanton, now proprietor of a Philadelphia beauty shop.

Today he announced he and Mary planned to be married December 28.

Stanton said he went to Mary's home in New Eagle to offer financial aid which would save her from marital martyrdom.

And what happened?

Good, old-fashioned romance, it seems.

Stanton was a neighbor of Mary's family before he moved east, some years ago.

And Mary is the girl who started the cycle of marriage offers by announcing she would wed for $10,000, which she said she wanted to relieve the destitution of her aged parents.

Rankin Boy Hurt When Hit by Auto

Andrew Trogan, 10, of 369 Third street, Rankin, suffered a fractured leg when struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Sam Romano, of 111 North street, Braddock, in Miller street, Rankin, last night. He was taken to the Braddock General Hospital.

Aliquippa Store Fire Routs Family

Aliquippa firemen early today extinguished a blaze in the Economy shoe store, at 376 Franklin avenue. A family, whose name firemen did not learn, was routed into the street. Firemen estimated the damage at $200.

DEBT CHARGES PROVED, SAYS M'FADDEN

Holds Experts' Report to Cut Payments Confirms 'Scheme' by Bankers

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The report of the Young Plan Advisory Committee urging reduction of the European governments' debts to the United States is proof of his charges that interantional bankers have engineered the whole scheme, Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, declared this afternoon.

McFadden, who was criticized for his attack upon President Hoover in the House last week, made another indirect assault on the President today.

SEES 'AGREEMENT'

The whole chain of events on debt negotiations, he said, discloses the kind of an agreement entered into by President Hoover and Premier Laval, of France, when the latter visited the United States. He asserted:

"The announcement of the moratorium, in the Franco-American agreement, the Laval-Hoover conference, and the confirmation of the moratorium, show the various steps that have led up to what is now proved as the definite aim to cut in two the reparation payments by Germany, and reduce the payment of war debts due the United States, which means that a burden of $250,000,000 has been placed upon the taxpayers of the United States this year, and each succeeding year thereafter, and this in the face of a growing treasury deficit of over $2,000,000,000 in the United States."

ISSUE UP TO HOOVER

Meanwhile, the report of the Basle committee of experts, holding that Germany cannot resume payment of the condition portion of her reparations at the expiration of the Hoover moratorium and proposing two years delay, had thrust the entire issue again before President Hoover.

The situation may easily evolve itself into the crisis of President Hoover's political career, and intrude upon the forthcoming presidential campaign in a highly spectacular manner.

The temper of Congress is plainly to grant no further delay in Europe's payments to the Treasury. This was very apparent in the debate and vote that accompanied ratification of the one-year moratorium. Thus the question arose today as to what is to be done next June when the one-year moratorium expires. There was no answer to the question at the White House, but on Capitol Hill many members privately declared there would be no extension.

JOHNSON SEES VICTORY

In the light of the Basel report, Senator Johnson, of California, chief of the moratorium opponents, said:

"The fight on the moratorium was one of those losing fights that is won. The American people having now been saddled with $250,000,000, they will not tolerate any endeavor to pay the whole cost of the horrible World War."

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, supporter of the administration on everything but revision, greeted the report with the assertion that the nation's debtors are amply able to pay without reference to reparations.

TREASURY TAX PLAN DEFENDED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The administration struck back today at criticisms that its tax increase plan mainly affects individuals with small means.

The treasury said persons with incomes of $5,000 and less would contribute only $27,000,000 of the proposed increase of $222,000,000 which would come from the added income tax. It was estimated persons with incomes of $10,000 and more would contribute $182,000,000 additional.

The administration believes it is out of the question to obtain from taxation of larger incomes anything approaching the total amount of additional revenue needed. The number of incomes of $100,000 and over fell from 16,000 in 1928 to 6,200 in 1930, and the tax on such incomes dropped from $700,000,000 to less than $240,000,000, declared the formal statement, issued at the treasury.

B. & L. Assets Put At Nine Billions

Building and loan associations have a membership of 13,000,000 persons and assets of $9,000,000,000, William E. Best, president of the United States Building and Loan League, told the Pitt Business Men's luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, today.

Dry Raiders Seize Moonshine in Auto

Federal prohibition agents early today seized an automobile containing a five-gallon can of moonshine in Cliff street, near Manilla street.

Experts' Report Seen As Dooming Young Plan

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The Young Plan advisory committee report upholding Germany's contention that she cannot pay conditional reparations at the expiration of the Hoover moratorium, is regarded by bankers here as the beginning of the end of the Young Plan.

Those who have studied the document regard it as a carefully balanced statement of the German situation in the light of the world depression, and as remaining within the framework of the Young Plan as France demanded, but at the same time they believe it sounds the death knell of the plan itself.

The French victory, if such it was, came in omissions—in the shifting of the whole reparations problem to the international conference tentatively scheduled for next month, and in the achievement of the French delegation in forcing their colleagues on the committee to confine themselves strictly to the letter of the Young plan.

The Germans, however, received complete vindication in their contention that they no longer can make conditional payments, it is agreed.

Bandits Rob N. Y. Insurance Office

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Three bandits, levelling two revolvers each at 100 cowering employes of the Prudential Life Insurance Company's branch office on upper Broadway today, stole $6,000 and escaped in a taxicab despite the efforts of a policeman, who pursued them for 20 blocks down Riverside drive.

South Africa Yule Shoppers Killed

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Twelve persons were believed to have been killed this afternoon when the walls of a building in course of demolition collapsed, burying a small store crowded with Christmas shoppers.

CHARITY, CHEER TO MARK CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION HERE

GIFTS TO NEEDY PREPARED BY MANY GROUPS

Carol Singing, Many Feasts, Special Church Services Planned for Gay Holiday

The spirit of charity and good cheer will pervade the homes and institutions of Pittsburgh tomorrow, Christmas Day.

In special services in churches, carol singing in the streets, bounteous giving of food and clothing to the poor, toys to children, in family reunions, fireside festivities and in varied public entertainment, the day will lack none of its traditional joyousness.

Thousands of baskets of food are being distributed today and tomorrow by charitable, fraternal and neighborhood relief organizations that no family may go hungry.

Among the institutions and individuals spreading Christmas cheer to the needy were the Pittsburgh Association for Improvement of the Poor, Salvation Army, Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, Volunteers of America, Syria Temple Shriners, Parting of the Ways Home, Junior Red Cross, Twenty-fifth Ward Ladies Republican Club, Almas Club of Dormont, P. P. Riley Club of the Seventeenth Ward, Variety Club, Millvale Relief Fund, Ebenezer Baptis Church, Ukranian Presbyterian Church, Fourth Ward Relief Association and P. P. McKnight, 2327 Fifth avenue.

Christmas dinners were to be served and entertainment provided at the Western Penitentiary and at the Allegheny County Jail and workhouse.

Midnight Masses To Usher Yule

Midnight masses in many Catholic churches tonight will usher in the religious observance of Christmas, which will be continued tomorrow with special services in many churches of the Pittsburgh district.

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the Catholic diocese of Pittsburgh, will officiate at a pontifical mass at St. Paul's Cathedral at midnight.

Tomorrow at 11 a. m., Bishop Alexander Mann, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese, will speak at services in Trinity Cathedral.

Many Lutheran churches will hold services at 7 a. m. tomorrow, while sunrise pageant will mark opening of the day's observance in others. Christmas treats and entertainments for Sunday School children tonight in many places also will be features.

SANTA HALTS BRIDGE TILT

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Time out from the battle of the pasteboards tonight!

"Fifi" and "Jump-Bid Ely" Culbertson will occupy the center of the stage—at the insistence of their mother. Culbertson will be present—possibly doubling as Santa Claus, although he hasn't admitted it.

"Uncle Sidney" and "Uncle Ossie," bachelors both, wanted to have a little game of bridge this evening.

Three guesses as to who said "No."

"Uncles" Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby possibly were a little anxious because they entered the Christmas recess trailing by 14,525 points. At the end of the eighty-sixth rubber early today, Culbertson and Theodore Lightner had added 3,820 points to their lead.

Bandit Gets $27 In Police Station

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 24.—The police station was robbed here today.

"The boldest thief" took $27 from the desk of Police Clerk Sam Childers, but overlooked a cash-drawer containing between $700 and $800.

Fliers on Long Hop Take Yule Cheer

SEVILLE, Spain, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Two army fliers hopped off today on a flight to Bata, Spanish Guinea, on the west coast of Africa. They carried champagne for a Christmas eve supper in the air.

Student Woos 100 Women for Sake Of Science

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Sheldon Klein, 19-year-old student of psychology at a university, admits he made love to 100 women by mail for science's sake. His research led him to conclude:

Any woman will listen to a hard-luck story, but blondes are more sympathetic.

All women like to think the man paying them attention is handsome.

When women are at loss for words of romantic endearment, they snap up the banal endearments of popular songs.

Most women are anchored to a narrow routine, and want to break away in imagination.

Love is the only illusion that women won't surrender.

Francis J. Kennedy, assistant district attorney, who began an investigation into Klein's activities because of his huge mail from women, listened to the conclusions and decided that such experiments were too trivial for prosecution.

DR. ANDRE FREE IN GIRL'S RENO 'PARTY DEATH'

Divorcees and Cowboys Cheer Verdict, Which May Unite W. Va. Dentist and Wife

By MILLER HOLLAND
International News Service.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 24.—A jury today acquitted Dr. Carl Pierre Andre, Fairmont, W. Va., divorce seeker, of a charge of killing his pretty sweetheart, Mrs. Martha Hutchinson, following a gay cocktail party attended by members of the divorce colony and University of Nevada co-eds at a dude ranch near Reno.

Tumult broke out in the historic old Washoe County Courthouse as the jury returned its verdict at 1:13 a. m., after deliberating one hour and 15 minutes.

Gamblers, cowboys, college students and beautiful young divorcees cheered and yelled.

"BEST CHRISTMAS GIFT"

Tears came to Dr. Andre's eyes as his elderly father, Omar Andre, who came here from West Virginia to aid his son during the trial, patted him on the shoulder. Dr. Andre said:

"It's the greatest Christmas present I ever received.

"I'm going to stay right here in Reno and practice dentistry. There's no reason I should leave. The accident was one that could have happened to anyone."

Dr. Andre maintained on the stand that Mrs. Hutchinson was killed when she fell out of his automobile as Dr. Andre said he swerved to avoid striking another machine. The state contended Dr. Andre struck Mrs. Hutchinson and threw her out of the car.

SPEED TO CELEBRATION

Fighting their way through a cheering crowd, Dr. Andre and his father rushed to a telegraph office to notify Dr. Andre's mother, in West Virginia, of the verdict, after which the Andres and the entire courtroom of spectators piled into automobiles and dashed to the Willows Night Club for a celebration.

Dr. Andre's attorneys indicated that Dr. Andre and his wife, who is ill in West Virginia, might become reconciled. Dr. Andre had filed suit for divorce, but Mrs. Hutchinson's death prevented hearing the divorce action.

JAPAN TO DEFY U. S., POWERS ON CHINCHOW

Tokio Declares Latest Note To Be 'Surprise;' Reply Courteous, but Unyielding

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Dec. 24.—The Japanese government intends to make immediate reply to representations received from the United States, British and French governments, expressing apprehension over Japanese military activities near Chinchow, Manchuria, the foreign office announced tonight.

The reply will be courteously framed, but will express Japan's determination, regardless of outside intervention, to proceed with what the government calls an "anti-bandit" drive in the region of Chinchow.

MORE UNEXPECTED

A government spokesman said the new move by the United States, France and Great Britain, which apparently was made after exchanges between Washington, Paris and London, was entirely "unexpected." William Cameron Forbes, United States ambassador, expressed his government's anxiety to Premier Inukai at noon.

Meanwhile, despite the protests, Japan extended the scope of its military activity in Manchuria by land, air and sea.

In connection with the reported contemplated seizure of Chinchow, the cruiser Izumo and the aircraft carrier Notoro proceeded to Port Arthur. The Japanese navy office explained dispatch of the battleships on the grounds of the existing "menace to Chinchow."

CHINESE FIGHT HARD

Latest news from the "front" indicated Chinese irregulars were putting up stiff opposition to continued advance of the Japanese westward in the direction of Chinchow.

The Chinese launched a counter-attack at Tienchwangtu at 2 a. m., but were repulsed, with heavy losses. At Yingtow bandits removed more than 500 yards of track on the branch line between Hope and Koupangtzu, effectually halting the Japanese advance in that sector. The Chinese captured a number of coaches and freight cars and took them to Koupangtzu.

BASSETT WILL FIGHT FAILS

Judge E. C. Chalfant, in Orphans Court today, refused to impound the assets of Ira S. Bassett, business man evangelist, as requested by Claude B. Sharpe, named executor in the rejected Bassett will.

Sharpe had contended Bassett left assets valuable and extensive, and that they should be given over to custody of the court. No valuable property yet has been discovered.

The court also granted a citation on Bassett's wife, Lolah, and his daughter, Mrs. Lillian G. Marks, who was named administrators, directing them to show cause why the will should not be probated. The rule was made returnable January 4. The will was thrown out because of a letter left by Bassett saying he had been forced to sign the document.

Bert Wheeler, Wife Agree to Separate

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Bert Wheeler, motion picture and stage comedian, said last night that he and his wife, Bernice Speer, actress, have separated and that attorneys are arranging a property settlement.

Wheeler announced that he and his partner, Robert Woolsey, will leave in April for a tour of the world.

Ambridge Theater Endangered by Fire

The Ambridge Theater Building at Seventh and Merchant streets, Ambridge, was periled last night when fire broke out in the Workingman's store, on the first floor of the building. The flames were confined to the store.

GRID INJURIES FATAL TO BOY

An autopsy today indicated that Merrill Weber, 20, of 722 Litchfield street, Sheraden, who died last night in his home, was a victim of injuries suffered in a football game last Sunday. The contest was between alumni of Langley High School and the Hilltop A. C., Weber being on the former team. The game was played at Sheraden.

The young man was thought to be in good health earlier in the evening. He had complained of a minor injury to the elbow received in the game.

He was found unconscious in his bedroom by a sister, Thelma. An hour later he was dead.

The autopsy gave a hemorrhage of the brain as the cause of death, and it is believed he suffered a blow on the skull during the game.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weber.

'Blinded' by Smoke, Pilot Wrecks Plane

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Losing his way in the smoke over Greensburg coke ovens, B. O. Burghbuff, Hagerstown (Md.) pilot, damaged his plane in a forced landing last night. He was unhurt.

Burghbuff, employed by a Hagerstown aviation company, landed in a field on the John Hodge farm, breaking a wing and otherwise wrecking his ship when he crashed into a hay stack.

Fliers Hunt Missing Plane, 5 Passengers

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Two airplanes left here today for Bahaman waters to search for a plane piloted by Edide Stafford and said to contain five passengers, which was not reported after it left Bimini yesterday on the way to Nassau.

The plane, owned by William Joyce, of Miami, carried two women, a man, a boy and a child, the owner said. Names of the passengers were not available.

Shots at Fleeing Convicts Stir Town

CANON CITY, Col., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Residents of Canon City were terrorized today when six guards from the state penitentiary fired 50 shots at two escaping prisoners.

Edwin McCullough, 29, a convict, was shot in the stomach and is believed fatally wounded. S. C. Campbell, 31, the second convict, escaped the bullets, but was later captured under a bed in a home near the prison.

Thug Gets $20,000 In Busy Postoffice

SEATTLE, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A robber, armed with two guns, held up the cashier's office of the main Seattle Postoffice late yesterday and escaped with approximately $20,000. Dozens of patrons were in the lobby a few feet away.

KIDNAP MURDER CLUES FAIL

CINCINNATI, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Inquiry into the brutal killing of 6-year-old Marian McLean reached an impasse today.

A week to the day after she disappeared police found themselves with virtually every clue exploded, the identity of her degenerate slayer still unknown, the scene of the cruel attacks upon her still not found.

Police continued their efforts to learn the identity of a man reported to have carried a bundle to the tenement cellar where the girl's mutilated body was found. Questioning of Charles Bischoff, who lived in the building and who found the body, was continued by alienists.

KLINE RELATIVE LOSES ON TRIP

Dr. S. H. Johnston, brother-in-law of Mayor Kline and member of the Civil Service Commission, today said he had taken a $250 loss on his trip to San Francisco last August, when he represented the city at the Civil Service Associations' convention.

Council yesterday approved his expense account of $364. The first bill was for more than $600, which Council rejected, secretly. Said Dr. Johnston today:

"I didn't want to attend the convention, but the Chamber of Commerce asked me and Council approved. If I had known then what I know now I wouldn't have gone. The only thing I can do is accept the loss."

Baby Joins Jury Hearing Murder Case

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—An unofficial "thirteenth juror" has been added to the panel hearing the case of John Moceri, accused of killing James Barrett, a bootlegger. Mrs. Emma L. Engel obtained court permission to keep her 4-month-old son with her when the jury was ordered locked up during the trial. During the day relatives care for the infant.

RUTLAND, Ill., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Harry Richart, of Milton, Pa., making a transcontinental bicycle trip, was killed today by an automobile.

M'KIRDY SCORES TUNNEL DEAL

John E. McKirdy, a member of the Planning Commission, at a hearing before that body today on the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad tunnel and bridge project, charged that an attempt was being made to rush the proposition through before the new Commissioners take office. He said:

"The whole thing is a scheme to pull this thing off before the new Commissioners take office. I think it's a shame."

The commission met to consider the proposal for the county to buy the bridge and tunnel and convert it into a vehicular traffic artery, for $4,200,000.

Scores Saved From Fire in Apartments

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Thrilling rescues of scores of men, women and children were made today by firemen and police during a spectacular three-alarm fire which routed 200 occupants and caused damage estimated at $50,000 to a seven-story brick apartment building.

Aerial ladders were used by firemen, who, with the aid of police, carried down occupants trapped in upper stories. About a dozen tenants were overcome by smoke, but were revived.

Author's Executors May Sue Americans

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A petition for letters as ancillary executors was filed in Surrogate's Court yesterday by the widow and a brother of D. H. Lawrence, English author, among whose books was "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

Attorneys said the move indicated the estate might bring suits against several American publishers for royalties on Lawrence's books. The surrogate deferred action.

Army Officer Leaps 12 Stories to Death

Man Shoots Self While Visiting Son

Ray Chew, 45, of 138 Fern way, was treated at Homeopathic Hospital early today for a gunshot wound in his left shoulder which, police say, was self-inflicted. The officers reported Chew shot himself during a visit at his son's home at 5843 Pierce street, Squirrel Hill. He had been despondent.

Children Still Awaiting Volunteer Santas Here

A toyless Christmas, a joyless day, awaits hundreds of boys and girls tomorrow unless grown-up Pittsburgh volunteers in the role of Santa Claus.

Boys and girls in homes never before lacking Yuletide fun and toys, face disappointment if hundreds of grownups do not avail themselves of the names on a confidential list provided the Sun-Telegraph by Dr. Ben Graham, superintendent of schools, and his staff. The names of one family or more can be obtained by telephoning the Christmas Editor, Grant 6500.

Scores of readers have been obtaining names since the appeal was issued Monday. They are taking toys and gifts directly to the children, or arranging for delivery. Many have called for 10 and more families totaling over 40 children. Others obtained names of one child.

All these are eager to prevent the disappointment that threatens to sadden a day that should radiate happiness. Names are available in all districts. The Christmas Editor will assist in the selection of names to lessen extra efforts of the donors.

It is not too late to play Santa.

CLERK C. W. KOSINSKI

RAPS GOVERNOR FOR MAKING BOY 'LIFER'

Priest Denounces Hartley's Refusal to Put Lad, 12, in School; Answers Attack

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 24.—Following the refusal of Gov. Roland H. Hartley, of Washington, to order release on parole of 12-year-old Herbert Niccolls, "hare-foot slayer," to Father Edward J. Flanagan, of Omaha, the latter issued a statement presenting his side of the unique case.

Father Flanagan, trying to have the convicted slayer of Sheriff John Wormell sent to his famous "Overlook Farm" for rehabilitation, made a trip to the Pacific Coast to intercede with Washington authorities. Gov. Hartley severely criticized him for his interference in the matter. Father Flanagan's statement follows:

Gov. R. H. Hartley was within his honored province as chief executive of the State of Washington when he denied the parole to Herbert Niccolls, the unfortunate 12-year-old boy murderer. But when he deplored my efforts and cast insinuations upon my sincere motives in trying to obtain the boy's release, he stepped into the gutter of ward politics.

DECISION WITH PEOPLE

Whether Gov. Hartley was right or wrong in reaching his conclusion that Herbert should not be paroled and saved from spending the rest of his life behind prison bars, is a decision that rests solely with the people of the State of Washington who are franchised to vote.

Gov. Hartley made the statement that well-cornorated experts advised him that Herbert is beyond being saved. As a student of sociology and with 15 years of experience in the handling of wayward boys, I am interested in knowing from whom the Governor obtained this advice.

What a pity and a shame that Gov. Hartley should base his opinion on such evidence when students of sociology are aware that heredity is a minor influence on a child and that environment is the chief influence that determines character.

BLAMES ENVIRONMENT

Herbert's environment and not heredity prompted him to do the things that led to the tragic day when he pulled the trigger and killed a peace officer. What Herbert who is little more than a baby, did and what he is today, is not because of his true heart or mind, but it is the result of poor home environment and bad influences.

I bitterly resent the accusations made and the inferences cast by Gov. Hartley that my purpose and the purpose of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home in trying to obtain the release of Herbert was for the benefit of obtaining nationwide publicity for myself and my home. Father Flanagan's Boys' Home doesn't need publicity. I was surprised that such attacks would come from the executive mansion of the fine State of Washington. To me it sounds like the mutterings of a whipped political boss.

The appeal was made by our home over 44 radio stations, through the press and from the pulpit in an attempt to focus national attention on the miscarriage of justice which placed Herbert Niccolls behind prison bars for life.

PRAISES NEWSPAPERS

Gov. Hartley should be ashamed that he should attack as "emotional" the attitude of parents and humanitarians who interested themselves in attempting to get a fair deal for Herbert. He calls the newspapers sensational which aided me in my fight to get a parole for Herbert. I am proud of these newspapers which carried the terrible truth about the great state of Washington convicting a mere baby of murder, in the first degree, and sentencing him to life behind prison bars in a state penitentiary.

These newspapers are not sensational—they are human—they see the light. They deserve the praise of the American public, rather than the scathing denunciation on the part of the Governor as it is only by such publication of the facts about stupid solutions of juvenile crimes that such matters can be corrected.

BOY POLITICAL FOOTBALL

I am disappointed in the Governor's decision. But I would have no ill feeling toward him because he saw fit not to parole Herbert. But I was hurt and surprised in the Governor's statement accompanying his announcement of the decision reached.

I can't believe it is Gov. Hartley himself making such a venomous and undeserved attack upon me and our institution, but that he has been ill advised, and if he has not then in my humble opinion he is making of Herbert Niccolls a political football.

What a Christmas for Herbert.

Husband Killed in France in World War

MRS. HARRIET HESPENHEIDE KAHLE . . . ASKING FOR SHARE

Mrs. Kahle, 5900 Hampton street, in Orphans' Court asking for her share of the $10,000 war insurance held by her husband, Clarence Courtnes Kahle, W. & J. College alumnus, killed in action in France 13 years ago. Anna Kahle, a sister, opposes Mrs. Kahle's share, contending she and her late mother were named beneficiaries.

WRECK BLAMED ON TAMEPERING

HARRISBURG, Dec. 24.—Malicious tampering with angle cocks which rendered the airbrake system useless was responsible for the Pennsylvania freight wreck near Gallitzin on December 9, the Public Service Commission held today. One railroadman was killed and three injured when 76 cars and the engine were derailed. Angle cocks, it was explained, are located at each end of each car for the air system.

The commission held the wreck was caused by the failure of the airbrake system to function properly. John P. Dohoney, chief of the Commission's Bureau of Accidents, in a report said:

"This failure was the result of the malicious closing of one or more angle cocks by a person or persons unknown."

When one cock was closed, air was shut off from all following cars. A closed angle cock was found on the twelfth car. Three hours earlier a closed cock was found on a westbound train and four days later similar tampering was found.

Senators Pledge Aid In Tracing Slayer

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Detectives of the United States government today were holding themselves ready if needed to join the hunt for the slayers of Harry Lapidus, wealthy Jewish manufacturer and political leader.

Senators George W. Norris and Robert B. Howell, both close friends of the dead man's family, assured the relatives that federal assistance would be furnished if needed to solve the mystery of how Lapidus was found in his automobile with five bullet wounds in the head.

Poor Board Expense Argument Slated

Argument on the suit of Waller H. Riehl, taxpayer, seeking an account of $750,000 in taxes spent by the County Poor Board, J. Clyde Miller, Dr. W. D. Henderson and H. H. Dixon was fixed for the second week of February, by an order of Judge John P. Fagan. Argument will be on the petition of the board challenging the jurisdiction of the court.

Deasy New Official Of Travelers' Society

J. V. Deasy, vice president, Pennsylvania Railroad, has been elected a member of the board of the Travelers' Aid Society, Eleanor D. Gillespie, secretary, announced today.

$500 GIFT AIDS WELFARE FUND

Another boost was accorded the campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association with receipt of a Christmas gift of $500 from Sears Roebuck & Co., East Liberty. The gift is in addition to a previous donation of $4,000.

Pending the weekly tabulation of returns, the campaign total stands at $5,451,766, including the conditional offer of $750,000 from 20 corporations and individuals with the stipulation that the remainder of the $5,981,184 goal be raised by the public. Stressing the need of renewed support for the campaign, G. G. Coolidge, president of the Family Welfare Association, announced it had received nearly 6,000 new applications in November and carried over 13,000 families in December.

LAST LINE WINS FOR WOMAN

Elizabeth Campbell, 1114 Jane street, Wilkinsburg, is $5 richer for the holidays for writing what the judges considered the best last line for the Sun-Telegraph Christmas Jingle, No. 36. Here's how she completed the jingle:

A well-esteemed man, Banker Dunn
Did not have to fear any "run."
All his clients stood pat
Any year, lean or fat
Now he can write Jingles for fun.

The five $1 prize winners were: John Ellis, Nevin avenue, Sewickley; Mrs. Nellie G. Rice, 47 Cobb avenue, Ingram; Margaret A. Jacobs, 2844 Broadway, Pittsburgh; Rita Kelsey, 3107 Landis street, Pittsburgh, and George Houston, Valencia, Pa.

Winners of Jingle No. 37 will be announced Saturday.

Tipstaff Injured Going to Mail Cards

On his way to mail Christmas cards yesterday, Samuel McQuigg, 78, of Hoffman Station, old Butler Short Line, a tipstaff in Common Pleas Court, was knocked to the street by an automobile in front of the City-County Building. He was removed to Mercy Hospital suffering from bruises and lacerations.

CHIMES BY WIRELESS

JERUSALEM, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—By means of wireless, the bells of St. Thomas' Church in New York will be rung from the ancient Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem at midnight tonight.

The current will be carried over a land line to Aburabal and from there carried by radio to New York, where it will start operation of the St. Thomas carillon.

HOOVERS GIVE TOYS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A circle of green leaves and red berries hangs on the white door of the President's house, but recognizing the solemn background of this year's economic stress, President Hoover's family collected toys instead of distributing them at the first Christmas party of Peggy Ann and Peter, the Hoover grandchildren. Today the dolls and tops are en route to Morgantown, W. Va., for less fortunate children in the mining districts.

A whole series of parties will keep the White House merry. The cheer of the day will be broadcast by the President, and Mrs. Hoover to the radio audience when an outdoor Christmas tree is lighted in a public square late this afternoon.

Tomorrow will be largely a day of homes and children. But Mrs. Hoover will leave the White House to distribute toys to children in a big local theater.

KING ON HOLIDAY

SANDRINGHAM, England, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Shedding the cares of state, King George and Queen Mary, of England, are spending a homely and old-fashioned Christmas vacation at Sandringham House, the beautiful royal country mansion 100 miles from London on the Norfolk coast.

There, amid the intimate surroundings of the private residence they love and in company with their children and grandchildren, their majesties annually doff the mantle of royalty and become a simple country squire and his wife.

KAISER CELEBRATES

DOORN, Holland, Dec. 24.—The Shadow of Doorn, once the all highness of the German empire, will celebrate Christmas tonight in his Dutch fastness in accordance with the German custom which he still observes.

This Wilhelm's fourteenth Christmas in exile will differ from the preceding 13 only in the desire of its somberness. For the former Kaiser has elected, out of respect for his dying sister, Sophie, to abstain from the traditional merriment of the season. But there will be the traditional Christmas dinner and a Christmas tree felled by the former Kaiser himself.

Neither the Kaiser's children nor Princess Hermine's two sons will be present.

RUSSIA BANS FETE

MOSCOW, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Godlessness reigns supreme in Soviet Russia this Christmas.

The militant League of the Godless, ably backed up by the Soviet Trade Unions, today wound up a two weeks' anti-religious campaign in which they urged workers to remain at their benches, office employes at their desks and peasants in their farmyards over the holidays.

Stork on Train Delays Railroad Two Hours

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Due to the unexpected arrival of a young lady passenger, railroad traffic and the Frisco Meteor, Oklahoma City-St. Louis train, were delayed two hours yesterday.

The infant daughter was born in a stateroom to Mrs. Bertha Donaho, 25, wife of the County Clark at Ada, Okla. Dr. E. T. Smith, of Newburg, Mo., notified by telegram, boarded the train and attended the event.

An ambulance met the train here, but mother and child could not be moved immediately, and traffic and the train were held up for two hours.

Success Anticipated As Seal Sale Closes

The 1931 Christmas Seal sale closes today with a substantial response received by the Tuberculosis League, John F. Casey, president of the Christmas Seal committee, said definite returns are not available, as many seals are still outstanding.

41 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

The Department of Public Health today reported the following new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 8; diphtheria, 2; measles, 14; whooping cough, 2; chickenpox, 5; mumps, 4, and pneumonia, 6.

'POPEYE' TO GO ON AIR SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—E. C. Segar and "Popeye," his cartoon creation, which has been adjudged the all-American comic character choice for 1931, will be the features of the "National Weekly Radio Revue" on the WJZ coast-to-coast network Sunday evening, it was announced today.

It will be the first radio appearance for both Segar and "Popeye."

The revue will go on the air at 8:15 p. m., eastern Standard time, and will be heard through stations in New York, Boston, Springfield, Mass., St. Louis, Baltimore, Rochester, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and Spokane.

Other features will be John B. Kennedy, dramatization of an episode in the life of Stalin, Russian dictator, and musical specialties.

'Humiliated,' Wife Says, Gets Divorce

She was frequently humiliated by public scenes her husband created in an intoxicated condition, Lois A. McGehee, 31, of Lebanon Hall, Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, testified in Common Pleas Court. Judge John P. Egan granted her a divorce from J. Jesup McGehee, of Beacon street, a broker. She testified:

"He used to ridicule me for being so careful with money and he would get drunk and throw it away."

21 Injured as Bus Crashes Into Truck

PALMER, Mass., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Twenty-one persons were injured today when a New York-bound passenger motor coach crashed into the rear of a motor truck on the Boston Post Road.

HOLDUP VICTIM FINED FOR RUM

Louis Toplak, 41, of 820 North Canal street, is out $50 more than the $60 thieves took from him last night. Magistrate Ray E. Schneider said the $50 fine he imposed on Toplak was just a Christmas present, and Toplak thanked him.

When police answered a call to Toplak's home last evening they found Toplak and two visitors, Nick Popovich, 46, of 906 Vinial street, and Frank P. Paveslisck, 42, of 1006 Constance street, bound hand and foot with wire on the living room floor. Toplak had moved over to a telephone to summon police.

He told officers that two men had entered and stole $60 from him and a watch from each of his guests. A search of the premises revealed moonshine and five and 25-cent slot machines, police said. The three were arrested. At the hearing this morning the visitors were discharged.

McKeesport Auto Victim in Hospital

Jacob Hyer, 62, of 210 East Third avenue, McKeesport, was in the McKeesport Hospital suffering injuries to his chest and right leg received when he was struck by an automobile driven, police say, by William A. Gehring, of 3216 Homestead Park, while crossing the street at Eighth avenue and McClure street, according to a police report.

McKeesport Forms Helping Hand Grou

The McKeesport Helping Hand Association, similar to Pittsburgh's, has asked for a charter in Common Pleas Court. County Commissioner-elect W. D. Mansfield is named among its sponsors. A building owned by Samuel Brindel will be used by the association.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH
PENNSYLVANIA
NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller of the City of Pittsburgh until the 12th day of January, 1932, at 10 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, for the purchase of the following issue of bonds of said City:

$120,000.00 Public Works Bonds, 1932.

Said bonds will be dated January 1st, 1932 and will mature in Twenty (20) equal annual installments on January 1st of each year.

Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of four and one-half (4½%) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of July and January in each year without deduction for taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to the laws of future law.

Said Public Works Bonds, 1932, are issued to provide funds (including engineering and other necessary expenses) for the construction, reconstruction and repairs to streets and sewers, including reconstruction and repairs to bridges and approaches, extension and improvement of pure low system, improvement and repairs to park roadways, sidewalks and fences, purchasing and installing equipment and appurtenances for the betterment of sanitary conditions in the sewerage system.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of denominations of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars, exchangeable at the option of the holders at any time for a registered bond, or bonds, of the same maturity and of the denomination of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

Unless all bids are rejected the said bonds will be sold to the highest responsible bidder complying with the terms of this notice and the bonds at less than par and accrued interest on the delivery of said bonds to the date of delivery will be accepted. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the provisions hereof will be rejected. Any bid received will be held open upon the award to him of all or none of the bonds for which he bids.

All bidders are required to deposit a certified check drawn to the order of the City of Pittsburgh, on a National Bank or Trust Company, in an amount equal to 2% of the principal amount of bonds bid for. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. No interest will be allowed upon the amount of the check of the successful bidder and such check will be retained and applied on account payment for the bonds or to secure the City against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid.

The City of Pittsburgh reserves the right to deliver to the successful bidder temporary typewritten or printed bonds, in the form of one temporary bond for each maturity, which shall be substantially in the same form as the definitive bonds, with appropriate omissions, insertions and variations as may be required. Until then exchange for definitive coupon bonds, the temporary bonds shall be in full force and effect according to their terms, and shall bear interest from the first day of January, 1932.

Proposals should be addressed to James P. Kerr, City Controller, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and enclosed in a sealed envelope marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds." Bids must be made upon blank forms which may be obtained from the City Controller.

The successful bidder will be furnished with the opinion of Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh, that the bonds are binding and legal obligations of the City of Pittsburgh.

JAMES P. KERR,
City Controller.
Dated Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 24th, 1931.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Adding a gracious note to the balls, the dinners, the tea-dances of the holiday season are "at home" days. The Edward B. Lees will be at home on New Year's day in their picturesque new home, "Cedar Chest," William Penn way, near the Yale, Harvard, Princeton Club. The hours are 3 to 6.

* * *

The Henry Lawrence Joneses, the II. of Wilkes-Barre, are spending the Christmas week-end with Mrs. Jones' father and mother, Col. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church.

* * *

Mrs. John F. Mitchell and the William L. Mitchells have sailed on a Christmas cruise of the Mediterranean and Adriatic.

* * *

Popular Betty Kennedy made her bow last night at one of the most attractive events of the year, a dinner-dance her father and mother, the John J. Kennedys, gave in the exclusive old Pittsburgh Club.

Makes Debut

The debutante wore a smartly simple gown of white satin, molded to the figure and having rhinestone shoulder straps as decoration. She carried gift bouquets. Mrs. Kennedy chose ice-green satin. They received in the foyer before an embankment of silver smilax, with the bud's gift bouquets as contrast.

The ballroom was decorated with silver-decked balsam trees, and trees hedged in the stage, arranged to simulate a winter scene. Tables for the younger set were arranged about the ballroom and decorated with poinsettias and lighted by scarlet tapers.

Hugh Boyd, of New York, a classmate at Yale of the Kennedys' son, John K. Kennedy, Jr., was among the guests.

Elizabeth L. Meyers Weds Dr. J. S. Silvis, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Meyers, of Peermont avenue, Dormont, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Louise Meyers, to Dr. John Steele Silvis, Jr., of Mt. Lebanon, which was solemnized yesterday morning at 10.45 o'clock in the Meyers home.

After the wedding breakfast Dr. and Mrs. Silvis left for Detroit. After January 15 they will be at home in the Keystone Athletic Club.

The bride attended Oxford College and Dr. Silvis is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College and of Jefferson Medical College.

Named to Board Of Gumbert School

Mrs. Mary K. Fleming has been appointed by Judge James R. McFarlane, a member of the board of managers of the Gumbert Industrial School for Girls to succeed Mrs. Raymond M. Kaufmann.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

PEIPING, Dec. 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The American missionaries have taught the Chinese to not fight, but rely on the Lord. The Chinese diplomats have taught the people to rely on the League. But now they feel that both have fallen down on 'em. This is a time in the history of the world when you better be pretty well prepared or you won't get anywhere.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Tables at the University of Pittsburgh Alumnae Christmas party on Saturday have been reserved by many of the faculty wives. The party, which is to be at the Hotel Schenley, is a benefit for the Alumnae Association's student loan fund and is in charge of a general committee headed by Miss Elosie R. Bomhard.

Ruth Specter Becomes Bride of Detroit Man

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ruth Specter, daughter of Mrs. Jane Specter, of Shady avenue, to Ruben Scholnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Scholnick, of Detroit, Mich., which was solemnized on Monday.

Mr. Scholnick and his bride sailed on the Empress of Australia for a cruise of the West Indies and upon their return will reside in Pittsburgh.

SIMPLE, WEARABLE CREATIONS OVERSHADOW FANCY FROCKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 24. — Of course there are very decorative, lavishly done afternoon frocks about, but somehow one doesn't often see them. Nearly every house shows a preponderance of lovely, wearable frocks that are noticeable mostly for their simplicity. And at every place where smart women foregather one sees a vast variety of such frocks, each one managing to be different from its sisters, but all subscribing to subtle simplicity and to certain characteristics of the current mode. A few of those frocks in the wardrobe will promptly insure that well-dressed feeling that comes not from wealth, but from good taste. The wise woman shuns elaborate frocks for day wear, for all such a frock does is to add years and heaviness to the wearer. Simplicity is the essence of youth, but not its prerogative. All of us can make it the theme of the clothes in which we face the world during the daytime. It is one of the secrets of better dressing, so much so that one fine but simple frock will be found more useful and will be more worn than a couple of rich creations.

* * *

* * *

PATOU IS MAKING use of prints in his mid-season showing. The frock shown is of printed red and white crepe marocain in a Persian design nice for town or winter resort wear. The shirred treatment of one side of the bodice is interesting and smart. Another good detail is the curvine collar, which stands erect at one side and is drawn into a soft looped bow at the other, and is then passed through slits in the bodice proper. The slashed sleeves are similar in cut and detail to those in the other model. Two side pleats at the left front and two more at the right back give width to the straight skirt. The narrow belt ties in a small bow at the side back.

JUNGLE THRILLS :-: Get Authentic Scenes For Wild Life Movie :-: AMUSEMENTS :-: Notes About Screen And Stage Events

Phillips Holmes to Appear In Schoedsack's New Adventure Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 24.

Many new jungle thrills are promised screen fans by Ernest B. Schoedsack, Paramount's wandering director, who left Bombay, India, Tuesday to return to Hollywood and shoot interior scenes for "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

Schoedsack with his wife, Ruth, and his cameraman-brother, have been journeying since July 6. Fifteen weeks of this time were spent in India, where they secured shots of England's famous Bengal Lancers, went tiger hunting on elephant back and made scenes of camel caravans in the historic Khyber Pass.

Phillips Holmes

These authentic episodes will be woven into a story in which Clive Brook and Phillips Holmes are to have featured roles.

As I wrote the other day, Schoedsack's former partner, Merian C. Cooper, has been signed by R-K-O to supervise a series of adventure films. These two men were responsible for "Chang" and "Grass."

LATEST GOSSIP

On Christmas morning, Renee Adoree will receive a box from her friends at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. Despite her long illness in a Prescott Sanitarium, Renee still is remembered with affection around this lot. The Clive Brooks have decided to spend a white Christmas at Lake Arrowhead. . . . Those three musketeers, Edwin Knopf, Herman Mankiewicz and Jack Gilbert, have hopped a train to spend Yuletide in New York. Lew Ayres will be 24 on Monday; if you want to send him a birthday letter. . . . I heard today of a prominent Hollywood director who has been separated from his wife for 16 years but who still maintains a joint bank account with her. . . . Yuma was the scene of another film wedding Saturday night when Ben Markson, Hollywood writer, and Janet Dawn, a players agent, took the vows. . . . Saw Paul Page dancing at George Olsen's. It was one of the first times he has been out since his serious automobile accident. . . . Seena Owen, looking very attractive, also among the dancers. She'll be signing up for a picture one of these days. . . . Lionel Barrymore has found a pent-house dressing room at M. G. M.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Dear friends: Life's a play-time in a land of Make-Believe.
And we should have faith in all who act the play.
Hence, I send you heart-gold with gems our souls perceive—
May you all be merry on this glad Christmas day.
—Small Timer.

* * *

Trees 'n trees these days and "The Vinegar Tree" will be the Christmas tree in the Alvin, where Mary Boland will be its star. She will illumine it tomorrow—Christmas—night and all of next week. It is a gay thing and a light thing, as befits the Yuletide, and it is expected to add to merriment of the holiday season. There'll be a Saturday matinee this week and three mats next week—a special one on New Year's Day.

* * *

Small Timer says a pessimist is a person who has no faith in your remedy for saving the country.

* * *

Next Monday the Nixon will awaken from its little nap, rub its eyes and look at the wonders of "The Animal Kingdom," one of whom will be Leslie Howard, the stage boy who made good in Hollywood. "The Animal Kingdom" is a new comedy by Philip Barry, whose playmill turned out "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," shown in the same theater a few weeks ago. Matinees will be three—Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

* * *

Small Timer says the first year of his marriage his mother-in-law called him "Vi's husband," but now calls him "Vi's mistake."

* * *

Just to remind the elders that there is a kiddies' theater, we point the old index finger at YOU in our best mandatory manner and announce that there will be a presentation of a Children's Theater production, "Beauty and the Beast," in the Nixon Saturday morning, January 2, the company being the same that was seen there recently in "Alice in Wonderland." The finger is still pointing—you know—tickets will be wanted by the kiddies.

Bugs' Yuletide List Provides Cheer for All

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Our little list of Christmas gifts that will spread happiness throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof:

Seabury investigators—A doll that can talk but won't. Except by advice of counsel.

Raskob—The hope that the Solid South is only the liquid in brick form.

Big Colleges—A merry muddle and an amateur New Year.

Wall Street—A rock bottom that ain't too spongy.

Railroads—A loading platform on the United States Treasury Building.

Wickersham—A new slate, a piece of chalk and a big eraser.

Japan—Enough room in Manchuria to outflank the visiting diplomats.

International Bankers—Another Senate minstrels with the same end men, Mitchell and Kahn.

The Ghost Love

In her soft arms he knew white ecstasy,
And drank her breath like sacred crimson wine.
Against her breast he never thought of me
Or even dreamed some day I'd call him mine.

He tells me how he loved her—this is why
My heart is heavy now with grief and pain.
I think that it would burst should I but sigh
As flowers do when they are crushed with rain.

He tells me how he loved her—long ago.
When passionate youth coursed fire through his soul,
And all the lovely whisperings I know—
She knew—vows like old wine in a gold bowl.

He loved her when the moon was flaming white,
And all the stars were a blue singing flame.
He loved her then—but he loves me tonight!
Although he sometimes—calls me by her name.

—Juanyta Clivette.

Oh, Sure!

"Coolidge Wittiest of Presidents"—Headline.

Only once in his life was Mr. Coolidge funny. In fact he was funnier than Will Rogers.

When he posed in a cowboy hat.

Boo, Y'self!

In the "Frankenstein" flicker the fiend that Frankenstein created pauses to play with a little girl—who gives him a flower to smell.

As he smells it, a look of genuine pleasure comes over his face.

This is very nice, indeed, except that the flower is a daisy—which has no smell.

Of All Things!

The local chin-ema theaters went gay last week offering all sorts of fun in the billing on the theater-fronts. The Strand, for example, announced: "Safe in Hell"—"Not for Children."

The R. K. O. Theater at 86th St. featured: "Kate Smith—Helen Twelvetrees—Bad Company."

Score 1-0 Favor Ripley

"Dear Walter," passionately writes Robert Ripley, who appears in more newspapers than you, you, you, you and me—"I thrive on just such objections as made in your column the other day. In answering I am glad of the opportunity to refute an age-old fallacy which is prevalent in these United States.

"It is not true that a check dated on a holiday is not cashable or not enforceable for that reason. The reverse of it is true. If that little bank in Nebraska chose to keep open on Washington's birthday and to cash checks and put them through the books on that day, there is no authority, either State or Federal, that could prevent them from doing so.

"The document which I reproduced is authentic beyond a shadow of a doubt.—Bob Ripley."

Neatly worded reply, Bob—that "if that little bank CHOSE to keep open on Washington's birthday, etc." I can't imagine any bank keeping open on a legal holiday.

Not New, But Clean

"Whatever became of that old gag you used hundreds of columns ago about the guy who said 'Lend me a nickel, I want to call up a friend,' and a pal said: 'Here's a dime—call all your friends!'?"

"I've read it in dozens of columns in all part of the country in the last 10 days with the borrower being Hoover and the lender being Mellon!"

Overheard Squelch

"The Greeks had a word for him—but they never said it out loud!"

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the Dictionary of Best Similes: Gene Fowler: Snores that sounded like five dice in a leather cup. . . . H. Phillips: Ridiculous as some of the questions on application blanks. . . . E. S. Coppock: Pointed as the finger of suspicion. . . . Art Hohmann: As stepped upon as the face on a barroom floor. . . . Joe Renoff: Noticeable as "Frankenstein" in a group of chorus boys. . . . Ted Cook: Unimpressed as Gandhi looking at a clothing ad. . . . Al Schwartz: Necessary as a waste basket to a columnist.

Add Swelegant Retorts

Leon A. Friedman titles it "The Newest Definitions of an Optimist and a Pessimist" to wit:

Optimist: "Next year we'll all be begging!"
Pessimist: "From whom?"

Tree Drama

All is not Christmas trees this glad Yuletide. Mary Boland comes to the Alvin stage Christmas night in "The Vinegar Tree."

Stage Bills, Pictures On Way

"Strictly Dishonorable," co-featuring Paul Lukas, Lewis Stone and Sidney Fox, will open on the Stanley screen tomorrow. The stage will feature Jean Harlow in a personal appearance and Dick Powell's return as master of ceremonies.

Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery come to the Penn tomorrow in the film version of Noel Coward's comedy, "Private Lives." The stage will present "Jade," a revue that features Ross and Edwards, comedians.

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell are co-starred again in a romance with music called "Delicious," which will open an engagement in the Fulton today. The supporting cast includes El Brendel and Virginia Cherrill.

FILMS, VAUDEVILLE

Seth Parker, radio character, comes to the Sheridan Square tomorrow in "Way Back Home." Vaudeville acts will be a feature on the stage. The Sheridan Square, opening after several weeks of darkness, will change its entire programs twice weekly, opening days being Fridays and Tuesdays.

"Local Boy Makes Good," starring Joe E. Brown, opens tomorrow in the Enright as the film attraction. The stage will feature Marjorie White, film comedienne.

The Warner screen, beginning Saturday, will have "Compromised," co-starring Rose Hobart and Ben Lyon, as its feature. Douglas Fairbanks' travel picture, "Around the World in 80 Minutes," also will be offered.

"Frankenstein," featuring Boris Karloff and Colin Clive, will open a second week in the Davis tomorrow.

OTHER BOOKINGS

"The Rainbow Trail," Zane Grey's latest for the talkies, with George O'Brien playing the lead, comes to the Harris for one week, beginning Saturday. Vaudeville acts will be on the stage.

Vienna, city of romance and song, is the setting of the German film musical, "Schubert's Fruehlingstraum," which opens a week's run in the Avenue Cinema Monday.

Frank X. Silk's "Silk Stocking Revue," Columbia burlesque, will open in the Academy with a midnight show Sunday night. There will be a midnight performance New Year's Eve, to be followed at 3 a. m. by a "milkman's matinee."

Gandhi Says Farewell In Film

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Mahatma Gandhi's farewell speech to the world as he departed from Europe for his home in India, is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. In Victoria Hall at Geneva, Switzerland, the Indian leader answers various questions put to him and declares that his policy of peaceable warfare against British rule will be carried on.

The fiercest wrestling bout seen in America in many day is pictured. It is the contest between Jim Londos, the terrible Greek, and Ray Steele, California's hope, staged at Madison Square Garden in New York for the benefit of charity. Fifteen thousand fans cheer wildly for Londos. There is a thrilling description by the Globe Trotter.

CARTOONIST TALKS

Harry Hershfield, Hearst newspaper cartoonist and Broadway humorous, appears on the screen with a series of brand new stories.

To Beppu Beach in Japan go the pretty Geisha girls to visit the "Fountain of Hell." Its waters, and the sand warmed by natural steam under the earth, are supposed to help them retain their stylish figures.

In San Francisco Claude Owen, piloting an autogiro, ascends from the City Hall Plaza and sailing over the city trails behind him a 200 foot streamer with letters 10 feet high spelling out the words "Greetings 1932."

Hearst Metrotone News cameramen make a trip along the Chicago River photographing jackknife bridges and skyscrapers. Interest is added to the picture by some amazing trick photography.

It Is Our Duty to Go On Living Despite Grief

Empty arms! Have you ever known the ache of them?
Empty rooms!
Have you ever known the hell of them?
Arms that once were warm with the clasp of a little form. Rooms that once sang with the call of little voices, the rush of little feet.

And now—only silence, and memory, and the bitter wrench of watching other mothers playing with their babies, while yours lies out in the rain.

Do you know what such loneliness means? Thank God, if you don't.

WALL OF GRIEF

Such a one came to this column one day, signing herself "Distracted Mother." Her little son was dead, and she could not find her way out of the desolation that had fallen on her. A small daughter was left, and a loving husband, but she saw them as through a fog. Grief had built a wall around her so that their pleading voices, their pressing needs meant nothing to her. She could not free herself from the thought of the tiny dead boy.

"What shall I do?" she wept. "How can I go on? What does life matter now?"

And out of the deep wisdom that came with her own loss, another mother answers today. "Dear Sally:

"I feel that I must answer that letter from the broken-hearted mother, because I once was just like her.

"No, she does not need sympathy. Sympathy would only prolong her grief, and make matters worse. I know. Just last year I lost the sweetest little girl that God ever put on this earth. I am not the only one who thought so, either. Her teachers, her playmates, all loved her.

"I have another girl, older than she was, too. But she was my baby. Well, I suffered. I prayed. I didn't know what to do.

NEW HAPPINESS

"I had been warned against having any more children, but when I saw my child die, I felt that if children could die, why should I, a grownup, be afraid? So I made up my mind to have another baby, and I did.

"Well, my little son and I nearly died, but God helped this time, and we both pulled through—my new son and I. And how happy it has made me to have this little new baby!

"I will never forget my sweet little girl, but my new son keeps me so busy that I haven't time to think of her so often, or brood over losing her.

"Dear, broken-hearted mother, what you need is a new baby! It will fill your arms and soothe your heart. One child in a family is very lonely anyway. That little girl of yours needs a brother or sister.

"Remember, she misses her little brother, too, although you may not know it. So does your husband. Don't be selfish, dear friend, and think that only you loved him. They loved him too, and your husband probably feels losing him just as much as you do although, being a man and busy, he doesn't show it.

"Be brave. Bring him and your little daughter happiness. A new baby will do it. Have one! And may God bless you and your new son or daughter!

LIFE GOES ON

"Every family has had trouble and grief of some kind. But what a queer and terrible world this would be if we all let our grief show like you do! Did you ever think of that?

"We must all go on, because we've all known sorrow, and we must all help.

"ONE WHO HAS SUFFERED, TOO."

That's a brave letter, my dear, and God bless you for sending it.

Life must go on and we, who have lost that which was dearest to us, must go with it. That is our duty, and that is also our highest hope.

For if life does go on, in spite of everything, for us upon this earth, why should we doubt that it goes on for those, too, who have passed beyond our sight?

Life may, and does, wear many bodies; yet it always obeys one rule. Life always goes on. Today the fields lie asleep and the grain within them is seemingly as dead as the gravel around them. But with the spring that grain will wake and live again.

If God preserves the life in a blade of grass, shall he destroy the spirit of a little child? I can't believe it, my dear. Have hope! Live on! Love on! Fill your arms again!

'SILENT NIGHT—HOLY NIGHT'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

I wish every little child this Christmas a Wish. It is that it might—or may—have as marvelous, as beautiful, as strangely excitable a Christmas Eve as these I had when I was a very little girl. I can find no better one to wish them! My Christmas Eves were, in the first place, in the right setting. In the West of the Rocky Mountain. Where it can snow, my dears, as it used, Eastern Grandmothers say, to snow here in Pittsburgh. As though all the inhabitants of Heaven were throwing out their feather beds. After a night of snow west of Denver on "the foot hills," the old mountains and their feet and the prairie they rested upon were deep in white and encrusted with diamonds that hurt a little child's eyes to look out upon. Diamonds for 10 miles—I could see! And the wagon wheels and faraway feet, making brittle, creaking music in a dry snow such as little Eastern-heard children never see. The day of Christmas Eve was like that. A white world that glittered and was tense with marvels to come.

The little house I looked out from was not logs, of course, but it was no bigger than a play house, warmed by cracking pinewood. The Christmas tree was the last straw, and filled it full. I had cranberries and popcorn on MY tree. Does any little child get that in a town? I had a music box at the foot of it that sang to me and to a row of rakish, but respectable really dolls, that solemn, but exultant song, "Silent Night, Holy Night!" And my Father gave me my presents—slipping out, slipping in, and slipping out again!—in paper whiskers and a white wool cap—and was NEVER RECOGNIZED!

Christmas Eve meant more than Santa Claus. It meant mystery; the meeting of the fairy world with the real one; a confused glory of white satin banners in Sunday school; the glittering Star of Bethlehem, the glittering real stars that looked down at me and struck star fire again from the frozen prairie. Saint Nicholas; angels who looked in my mind much as Greta Garbo looks now; golden lilies; music boxes; candles; the spending of our dollars on my parents; a lump to tears over the extraordinary kindness of that [illegible] old person, Santa Claus, who took the trouble to remember every living child, by some miracle that I did not care to know of; the glow of the fire on the wall as I tried to stay awake, the last belief that I might even wake up with curly hair or a square piano in the cold pink morning! Of Christmas Day.

Such was the magic of Christmas Eve to one little child. I wish the same to all you little persons who write to me—and to those who do not, and never heard of

NELL BRINKLEY.

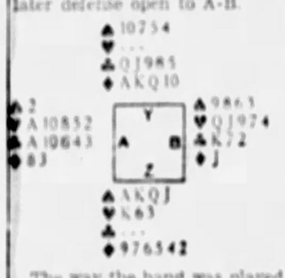
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

What Z Can Win at Spades

Z's dislike of opening bids upon topless suits caused him to bid 1-Spade upon the hand shown below. A overcalled with 2-Hearts, and Y jumped into 4-Spades, ending contracting. A's opening lead was the ace of hearts. I gave the hand yesterday, asking how many tricks Z can win against any later defense open to A-B.



The way the hand was played Z made just his four-odd, scoring game. Y trumped the opening lead, and Z gained entry to his own hand by leading a trump. Dummy trumped a return lead of hearts; the declarer pulled all trumps; led his top heart, then won four diamond tricks in Dummy; led back Dummy's top club and surrendered the last three tricks to opponents. When B remarked that an extra trick or two might have been made, the hand was reconstructed; one player showed how five-odd could be made and another made six-odd; really a grand slam cannot be stopped by A-B if played as detailed below.

Having trumped two rounds of hearts and taken one trick in trumps, before leading dummy's last trump, Z must lead a single round of diamonds, and then put himself in the lead by overtaking Y's last trump. All the declarer has to do after that is to take two more leads of spades, exhausting all trump in his own hand and in that of B. Upon each round of trumps one high diamond must be discarded from dummy. Having pulled all trump, Z must lay down his top heart, discarding upon it Y's laht diamond, leaving the five diamonds good in Z's hand, and giving him a grand slam against any possible defense, after opponents have made the opening lead of the ace of hearts.

Hands like the above, where the high blocking cards in one hand must be discarded to enable the other hand to run off a longer line of that suit, in my own experience appear to be dealt in any one group of players about once a year, or perhaps not so often, but aside from the score there is a great personal satisfaction in making the most of every hand held, sensing that B may hold four trumps is more a matter for instinct than judgment, because five missing trump are divided 4-1 or 5-0 only 32 times in 100 cases.

Heart of a Wife -:-

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Witnesses Age-Old Battle of Love

My question as to Mary's reaction to Avis Arlen's affectation of affectionate ownership of Noel was soon answered when I saw the glances which passed between the betrothed couple over Miss Arlen's unconscious head. She was now "cheek-dancing" with Noel, or as near the process as she could manage with Noel's face as far away as he could get it without being absolutely rude. His eyes were following Mary with an appeal in them which almost deserved the term agonized. And Mary? I could not blame her—her pride—and what I knew was her sincere love for Noel had been sorely hurt—but she was draining to the last drop the nectar of administering punishment. Indifference, quizzical derision, hilarious amusement—all these were mirrored in the brilliant, flashing glances she sent Noel, but not one hint of softer feeling, no slightest indication that she even remembered her betrothal to him.

Almost without my own volition I moved nearer the dancers, and so was quite close to Noel and Miss Arlen when the record ceased. Noel released her instantly, but her arm descended from his neck reluctantly, and her hand lingered on his sleeve.

"Oh! That was wonderful!" she cooed. "Make it play again for Avis."

"I'll ask Hank." Noel said quickly. "Excuse me, please."

He did not make his usual courteous bow, but left her so abruptly that she did not have a chance to detain him, and crossed swiftly to Mary and Hank. As he did so, I saw Marion deftly steer Bill to Avis's side, and knew that she would be tethered for a few seconds at least.

"Hank!" I heard Noel say in a strained breathless voice. "Miss Arlen wants to dance that record again. Will you put it on again, please and then dance it with her?"

Hank's eyes bulged.

"Will I?" he said exuberantly. "Just watch me."

He fairly leaped to the phonograph and Noel turned to Mary, laughing maliciously up at him.

"Mary," he said, and I wondered a bit impatiently whether he ever would get beyond the mere utterance of her name. It was the third time I had heard him say it in just that tone during the few minutes that had elapsed since the entrance of the Veritzen party.

"That's my name: I admit it," she said with an impish grin.

"Can't we get away somewhere and talk? I must explain——"

"Explain what?" she asked sweetly. "You don't imagine I need an explanation, do you? I'm dumb. I know, but there are things plain enough for even a moron to grasp. But suppose you grasp me now and dance this with me."

Hank was winding the old-fashioned phonograph, and I guessed that Mary had glimpsed—as I had—Avis Arlen's watchful glances toward Noel, and her intentions to summon him back to her. But even if he had seen them, I knew they no longer had the slightest power over him. All his soul was bent upon making peace with Mary, if he could.

He had swung her into position before the record started, and they caught the very first step of the music. Except for a few noted professionals, I never have seen a better dancer than Mary, and Philip Veritzen, himself, than whom there is no higher authority, has made the same statement. Noel, graceful and expert, has danced so much with her that their steps suit perfectly, and to watch them is to realize the banal old phrase of "poetry in motion."

But I did not watch them except for a second or two. Maliciously I wanted to see Avis Arlen's face when she should realize the caliber of Mary's dancing. She had dismissed it as negligible; I know when Mary was suiting her steps to the inexperienced one's of her brother, Hank, but even her vanity could not be proof against the exquisite floating beauty of the movements which Mary and Noel were executing. For almost invariably those two improvise their own steps to any music, and the result is worth watching.

But my malice had only a fleeting reward. For the fraction of a second her eyes widened in amazement and her face looked suddenly 10 years older. Then, as if by magic, the lines smoothed out and she turned a masked, smiling face to Marion.

"How exquisitely your sister dances!" she said gushingly, "or is she your cousin?"

"I'm sorry, neither," Marion said. "She's just the dearest friend I have, and then, of course, she's Noel's fiancee on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays."

I paid due tribute to bravery in the face of the enemy. Avis Arlen's facial expression did not change, and her silvery laugh was apparently spontaneous. But I reflected, she was probably prepared to hear the announcement. Noel was not the lad to deny his engagement. Indeed, he probably had been first drawn to Miss Arlen by her sympathetic admiration of Mary's picture which he always carried with him. I knew the game as well as if I had witnessed it. But I waited curiously for her answer to Marion's sally. It came promptly with just the right note of indulgent amusement.

"Oh! lovely fun!" she gurgled. "But why only Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Fine Health Is a Good Gift

Dr. Copeland

In the beautiful account given by St. Luke, we learn the story of Jesus' birth and early life. In quaint words he said: "And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit; and the grace of God was upon him."

No greater gift could possibly be given loving parents on Christmas Day, than to know that their child is to follow in the footsteps of Jesus. To grow, to wax strong, to merit the favor of God—there is little else to pray for in the life of any child.

Believing that gifts of health and goodness are largely acquired and not inherited, I tell you in all confidence that physical growth, mental development and vigor of mind and body are within reach of almost every child. With pure blood and fine physique come strength and clean thinking.

It is within your power to have your boy or girl grow and wax strong and be blessed with the grace of God. If you do your duty in the training of your child, you may share the joys of Mary and Joseph, of blessed memory.

Most of the Soviet teachings are obnoxious to me. To make the child the ward of the state is unthinkable. But, in one particular, I must admit there may be merit in that weird doctrine. Parental love, in too many instances, makes for softness and incapacity to exercise that discipline without which the child will be spoiled.

It requires firmness and almost inflexible insistence to drill into the young mind the importance of good habits. And it is certainly true that "as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined." Pope was right about that.

To build character and physique for the child requires character and good physical habits on the part of the parents. If you give example, as well as precept, your offspring will have gifts far more precious than the gold, frankincense and myrrh which the wise presented to Jesus.

Health comes first in the list of human blessings. While that may be counted as something merely physical, it is, after all, at the very foundation of mental and spiritual perfection.

Tomorrow, Christmas Day, let each of us who is in fact or in prospect a parent, promise self and God that every effort shall be made to teach health to the young lives placed in our keeping. Then we, too, may expect the grace of God to fall upon us.

Household Hints

Oil stains on carpets should be treated with a paste of fuller's earth. Leave the paste to dry and then remove with a stiff brush. Repeat the process if necessary.

Tiled floors that have become stained can be cleaned by rubbing with a cloth dipped in paraffin and a little lard. Wipe afterwards with a soft, dry cloth.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Matter of Good Taste

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it in good taste for a husband to kiss his wife when entering a room where she is entertaining some of her friends at bridge?

I have always avoided any demonstration of affection before others, unless they are intimate friends of both of us. However, it seems my husband and I have been criticized for omitting this little ceremony. I would appreciate your opinion.

C.

I should think that, instead, your friends would admire this evidence of good taste.

Bread and Butter Plates

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A says when a salad is served at a luncheon and small biscuits are served with the salad, the bread and butter plate is on the left side, that is, just above the salad fork. B says the bread and butter plate is placed on the right side, just above the spoon, the butter knife being placed on the bread and butter plate. Which one is right?

2. Also, are bread and butter plates used at informal dinners and where are they placed if one is serving salad?

3. Is the bread and butter plate always placed on the left (or right) side regardless of what is being served?

4. Are water glasses placed on the right side always? H. O.

1. A is correct. The bread and butter plate is always placed on the left of the plate, above the forks and opposite the goblet.

2. Yes, bread and butter plates are served at an informal dinner. As a matter of fact, they are placed nowadays at all but the strictly formal dinner. They offer such a convenience, not only for bread and butter, but for the accessories such as celery, olives, radishes and nuts and so forth.

3. Yes—always, regardless of what is being served.

4. Yes, always.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Drift — Local Market Narrow

STOCK MARKET KEEPS FAIRLY EVEN KEEL

Easier Tone Develops in Afternoon—Early Gains Reduced or Wiped Out

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Securities markets drifted on a fairly even keel today, while holiday preparations diverted much of Wall street's attention from price levels.

The report of the Young Plan Advisory Committee was generally regarded with satisfaction in banking quarters, but it was regarded as a step of too preliminary a nature to have notable effect upon security markets.

Fluctuations in share prices were confined to extraordinary narrow limits. The market was fairly firm for a time in the morning, but developed an easier tone after midday. Early gains of a point or so in such issues as United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, American Tobacco B, New York Central and others were largely lost, and a few issues registered small fractional losses. Westinghouse Electric was under some pressure, and sold off about a point.

Railroad Maturities High for Next Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Obligations of class one railroads which will mature next year aggregate $181,082,019, of which $110,782,506 are equipment obligations and $70,299,513 of bonds, the Senate Banking and Currency Sub-Committee was told.

In the first quarter of the new year 128 class one railroads will have to meet maturities of $2,677,550 in bonds, $35,984,395 in loans and bills payable, including bank loans and $35,560,820 of equipment obligations.

Auburn Automobile Position Bettered

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The statement of Auburn Automobile Company of August 31, last, shows total assets of $23,068,939, against $20,998,639 on August 31, 1930, and total surplus of $7,787,000, compared with $6,108,578 a year previous. Current assets totaled $15,143,784, and current liabilities $2,543,476, against $13,366,773 and $3,107,926, respectively, on August 31, 1930.

Pennsy Holders At Record Total

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The number of Pennsylvania Railroad stockholders this month reached 243,361, the highest total in the 85 years' history of the company. Recently the stock has been selling at the lowest price since it was listed on stock exchanges.

Building Contracts Drop in December

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—F. W. Dodge Corporation reports construction contracts in 37 states east of the Rockies totaled $71,177,200 during the first 15 days of December as compared with the prorated total of $124,718,100 for the like period of 1930.

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin, Radio Editor

Merry Christmas!

WE HOPE SINCERELY that your Christmas is joyously beautiful and that every second of the day ticks happiness for you and yours!

IF HAPPINESS alone depended on the radio we know our wish would be fulfilled. "Lighting of the National Christmas Tree in Washington, Mme. Schumann-Heink with Rudy Vallee, the Sistine Choir from Rome, the singing of Trinity Chimes in New York, actuated by the pressing of a button in Jerusalem and special Christmas Eve parties from local studios are outstanding attractions tonight. . . . Christmas Day on the ether waves is packed with superb entertainment including ringing of the Riverside Carillon in New York tomorrow morning, the service at Washington Cathedral, the Metropolitan Opera broadcasting for the first time, in "Hansel and Gretel," the Marine Band, Jessica Dragonette interpreting "Goldilocks and the Three Bears," and the Cavaliers singing "Grandfather's Clock." Dennis King, Reginald Werrenrath, and the Intercollegiate Ball at midnight from the William Penn Hotel, spotting four stellar dance bands—Husk O'Hare, McKinney Cottonpickers, Penn State Varsity Ten and Billy Weixel. . . . Radio has gone the limit to make your Christmas merry!

Darrell V. Martin

Question a Day:

Daddy reeds you news most every day and he says what you say is most times rite. Brother and I wonder if there is a Santa Claus. Is there?—Dot Harris, Ben Avon, Pa.

Answer—Of course, Dot! Why we talked with him yesterday and he mentioned something about visiting your house tonight. Santa is a jolly good fellow.

Studio Lights

Our suggestion of synchronizing an orchestra and a singer in different parts of the country, presented to John Royal of NBC a few months ago, has been deemed feasible and is to be tried New Years afternoon at 3 o'clock on KDKA with Bebe Daniels singing in Hollywood to accompaniment played by Paul Whiteman's Orchestra in Chicago, each principal is to wear a headset in the studios . . . this will enable them to co-ordinate voice and orchestra perfectly although separated by hundreds of miles. . . .

WWSW undergoes a slight change in ownership New Year's Day . . . the Radio Commission has authorized the voluntary assignment of the WWSW license from William S. Walker to the Walker & Downing Radio Corporation . . .

Leaving us soon . . . Musical Dominoes, Magazine Hour, Radio Impersonations, Musical Express, Jolly Time Popcorn Revue . . .

The Billy Joy who sings with Seymour Simones from Detroit tonight at 10 on the Lucky Strike Hour is the same Billy of WTAM and WJAS.

By JAMES J. LONG

Tiger Midway in Doubt. • Renaissance Coming.
Brothers Offer Promise. Negro Baseball League.
Higbe Not Yet Pirate. Jewish Boxers Dwindle.

ENS RATES GEHRINGER AMONG GREATS

IN ALL THE off-season size-ups of the Detroit baseball club and its prospects for next year, the real point on which the future of the team depends is being overlooked, in the opinion of Jewel Ens, who is to be coach of the Tigers and assistant to Manager Bucky Harris. The former skipper of the Pirates, who is spending the winter in Pittsburgh, expresses the belief that the condition of Second Baseman Charley Gehringer is the factor that will determine the fate of the Jungaleers.

Charley Gehringer

Until last season Gehringer has not missed a game in three years. But an injury to this throwing arm kept him out of commission for such a length of time in 1931 that he took part in only 101 contests, and often merely as a pinch-hitter, while his batting average dropped to .311, his lowest mark since 1926. The loss of his services took a lot out of the Detroit club, and Ens thinks his probable form for next season is the thing to be figured in estimating the possibilities of the Tigers.

"GEHRINGER HAS NEVER been given the rating he merits among the stars of the country," Jewel said. "I had plenty of opportunities to watch his work in the Pirates' exhibition games with the Tigers and at other times, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing him one of the greatest ballplayers I ever saw.

"He's a tremendous force on a club in every way—a great hitter, a brilliant fielder, a fine baserunner, a smart, smooth workman and a fighter. The presence or absence of such a player might easily make or break any team, and I am confident that if he is back in shape next year, as reports indicate he will be, the Detroit club will have nothing to worry about."

A BETTER THAN average prospect success is seen by baseball men for the new pair of brothers coming to the National League next season—Fritz Knothe, a third baseman, bought by the Braves from Seattle, and George, a shortstop, drafted by the Phillies from New Orleans.

Manager Bill McKechnie continues to receive reports that make him confident Fritz will come through for Boston, and George Susce, local catcher, who played with Fritz's brother in the minors, says the young shortstop has all the earmarks of a successful big leaguer.

PUBLISHED REPORTS THAT the Pittsburgh club had signed Kirbe Higbe, 16-year-old pitcher of the Columbia (S. C.) American Legion junior team, and would take him on the spring training trip, were at least a year ahead of time. Higbe will be a Pirate sometime if he has the right stuff, but that day is far distant. Instead of being added to the Buccaneer roster, the youngster has been signed by the Wichita club, of the Western League, the Pirate farm, and it is to that outfit he will report in the spring.

IN SIGNING TO coach Manhattan College, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of John Law, Chick Meehan went contrary to the dope which had linked him with a Big Ten job, but it was not surprising to see him catch on somewhere in football quickly.

Chick Meehan

For Meehan was recognized as being too good a coach, too clever a showman, to remain out of a position for long. He is likely to continue at Manhattan the progress started by Law. Manhattan has not been playing a heavy schedule, except for a game with Colgate, but there is promise that under Meehan's guidance football there will gradually be lifted a higher plane.

ONE OF THE biggest attractions of the local basketball season has been booked for Friday night, January 8, when the Renaissance stars of New York, world Negro champions for six years, will appear here in a game with Y. M. H. A. Cum Posey, recently elected a member of the Homestead Board of Education, by the way—who is bringing the Harlem passers to Pittsburgh, plans to show them here again in February in a tilt with the Rosenblum Celtics, of Cleveland.

This means two chances for the fans of this district to see the sensational Negro quintet. Renaissance has defeated the Celtics twice this season and tied them once. They are to meet again in Cleveland January 9 and 10.

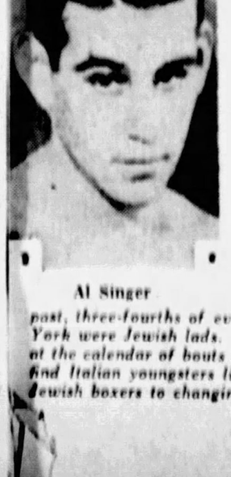
RENAISSANCE, ONE OF the really great pro teams of all time, has averaged more than 100 wins per season for six years, having piled up 609 victories against only 117 defeats. The Harlem stars have traveled all over the country, defeating the original Celtics, Rosenblums, Visitation Triangles, Chicago, Fort Wayne, and Rochester. The class of the team is Fats Jenkins, rated by New York critics the fastest man in basketball. In the lineup also is Pappy Ricks, formerly of the Loendi team, of this city, a remarkable shot, who has averaged 15.6 points per game for 250 contests. Last season Renaissance played 136 games and lost only 22.

POSEY, WHO MANAGES the Homestead Grays and is one of the most enterprising and progressive sport promoters in the business, is also hopeful of seeing in 1932 the consummation of a plan on which he has been working for a long time—the formation of a national Negro baseball league to embrace the East and West from New York to Chicago.

Cum has a good baseball man in the East and another in the West working with him, and they have already lined up Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, with Washington a possibility as the eighth club. A schedule of 112 or 126 games is planned. It is expected that the organization will be completed at a meeting to be held in January.

THE BIG BOXING centers as well as the small ones suffer when there is a scarcity of local talent. That's the cause of the fight game's present slump in New York, in the opinion of Johnny Attell, manager of the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club there.

Glove fans in New York, as in Pittsburgh and elsewhere, like to see home boys in action, and when home boys are missing the attendance falls off. Attell says 1930 and 1931 were the first years since the Walker law went into effect in which New York did not have youngsters coming along who would pack them in at the neighborhood clubs.



Al Singer

IS BOXING LOSING its lure for Jewish boys? Attell thinks so. He says there has been a steady falling off in Jewish representation in the ring game, whereas the percentage of Italian fighters is on the increase, and he fears the failure of Al Singer's attempted comeback will cause the decline to continue. "The decrease in home talent around New York is especially true of Jewish boys," he says. "Since Benny Leonard was lightweight champion, New York was never, until recently, without a Terris, a Goldstein, a Singer, or somebody like Benny. But the Jewish boys appear to have forsaken boxing. In the past, three-fourths of every amateur glove team representing New York were Jewish lads. Today you may find one in 10. Look at the calendar of bouts scheduled at the various clubs. You will find Italian youngsters listed in the main. I lay the decrease in Jewish boxers to changing generations."

JAGNOW SCORES 15 POINTS TO LEAD SKIBOS

By JESS CARVER

Carnegie Tech defeated Yale in basketball last night in the Tartan gym before a right nifty turnout as easy as falling off a log, and according to those who have indulged in log-falling, nothing is easier. The score of the game was 42 to 32.

The Tartans, even though their passing was not all it should have been, outclassed the Elis from A to Z and back again. The boys were faster, more clever and appeared to be better coached. They hopped away to a 7-1 lead almost in the time it takes to tell it, and maintained a healthy advantage throughout.

Yale employed a zone defense, which might have been o. k. had the Yales been capable of handling the Tartan ball handlers. But time after time, Carnegie slipped men free under the hoop and worked the ball into position for easy shots from beneath the basket. Had the Skibo marksmen been half way on, they'd have won by a far greater margin.

JAGNOW STARS

Lew Jagnow led the Carnegie attack with seven fine field goals, four of which he recorded in the first half. He also made good on one free throw, giving him a point total for the night of 15. His floor work was excellent, being as good possibly, as that of any of the Carnegie heroes. Bob Smith, the gent who usually scores rather high, was held to a single field goal and a foul.

At the end of the half, Tech led by 22-14. Yale never threatened to make it even close during the first 20 minutes except for a brief moment when the score read, 12-9. Jagnow and Eddie Stentz stepped into a picture at this juncture with field goals and the Yales were forced back.

The men of Carnegie maintained their eight point advantage throughout the second half, and with the game drawing into its closing moments, Capt. Jimmy Leonard and Jagnow matched Nikkel and McGowan, of Yale, shot for shot as the forces of the Blue and White endeavored to draw closer, with the result that the Skibos sported a sizeable advantage when the final gun popped.

USES SUB TEAM

Coach Hogan, of the Techs, inserted an entirely new team toward the close of the game, using Webster, Edelblut, Petransky, Seigal and Burns. Yale made only a single substitution, Howe taking Elliott's place in the second half.

McDonald High lost to the Carnegie Plebes, 36 to 17, in the preliminary contests. The lineups:

'ROUGH STUFF' BAN LIFTED, PITT WINS

By H. C. Carlson

PITT BASKETBALL COACH

Written Exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 24.—The sun broke through the clouds this mornin, and Pittsburgh has served notice th[at] they will fight fire with fire. All of this as a result of the Golden Cats' 25-to-2[1] victory over Kansas U. in the third and last game of the current series between the teams here last night.

Dr. H. C. Carlson

So far on this western tour of ours, Pitt has only received punishment. B[ut] they decided to give it back last night, and played the roughest game of their careers.

DON SMITH STAR

Every boy looked good, but that white head of Wrobleski bobbed up frequently to thrill the crowd while Pitt was behind, and then Don Smith took complete charge of the game in the latter part of the second half to rout Kansas.

Duckey Kowalis was the spark plug and Jimmy Lawry rested a slightly indisposed ankle.

The second team allowed Kansas six points in the last few minutes. Kansas continued its usual criss-cross attack, out front with pivot man at foul line and trailer back, occasionally giving the ball to the pivot man and frequently using a long shot with an aggressive follow in, which generally submerged the Pitties.

You don't have to prop up the corners of your mouths with a reminder of my indiscreet youth when another game is offered us on the Coast.

The boys were disappointed when Newsboy Joe, of Oakland, failed to arrive, for anyone from Pittsburgh would have looked good.

CESANI PRAISED

Cesani, a Jeannette boy, played good ball for Kansas through the entire series.

The Pitt boys looked at beautiful Kansas City on me yesterday and more than repaid me last night.

We are hustling towards those snow-capped Rockies and, confidentially, a lot of victories. The lineup:

Pittsburgh	Fg	F	Pt.	Kansas	Fg	F	Pt.
Lowry, f	0	2	2	(C) Lowry, f	4	2	10

'SNAKE' AMES ENDS LIFE

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—"Snake" Ames, of Princeton, was taken out of the lineup today—permanently. The famous Tiger fullback of yesteryear ended the game of life last night with the bark of his own gun.

In his later years he was known as Knowlton L. Ames, financier, newspaper publisher, and social leader.

Seated in the tonneau of his expensive automobile, he sent a bullet through his temple.

Failing health and financial losses were ascribed by relatives as the motive for his act. He was 63 years old.

A sorrowful Christmas was to be the lot of Ames' widow and their youngest daughter, Emily Anne, 5, who were due to arrive home today from Jacksonville, Fla., where they had been vacationing. They were on the train when Ames took his life.

Two surviving relatives, one a daughter, and both famous, are living in London, England. The daughter is Rosemary Ames, 24, a star on the London stage, who recently became engaged to B. A. Meyer, a theatrical producer in the British capital.

Ames' other relative, in London, is Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain. He was Ames' second cousin and one of his closest friends.

He also is survived by two sons, Knowlton L. Ames, Jr., publisher of the Chicago Evening Post, and John Dawes Ames.

FAMED AS FULLBACK

At Princeton in the late eighties Ames won nation-wide fame as one of the best fullbacks in the gridiron game. He graduated in 1890 and came to Chicago to pursue his brilliant career. For a long period of time he was head of K. L. Ames & Co., an investment concern. Then he went into the newspaper business, becoming publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce. After relinquishing this post to his son, Knowlton, Jr., the elder Ames be-

Agua Caliente Loses $100,000, Closes Track

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—President James N. Crofton, of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, has announced that the present race meeting would be temporarily suspended beginning today.

Poor attendance, resulting in a loss of $100,000 for the 24 days the meeting has been in progress, resulted in the decision to temporarily suspend racing. Crofton said it is hoped to resume the meeting on New Year's Day.

COAST MAY GET HEAVY BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Negotiations for a heavyweight championship match in Chicago this winter between Max Schmeling, the champion, and Mickey Walker came to an abrupt halt yesterday when Nate Lewis, Chicago matchmaker, declined to put up $50,000 as a forfeit.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, insisted Lewis post that sum as a guarantee the Illinois State Legislature amend the boxing laws so that a 15-round championship fight might be held. The Legislature does not reconvene until January 5, and Jacobs said he must have the guarantee to wait that long as he and Schmeling both wanted to get a match this winter.

The elimination of Chicago and the previous elimination of Miami, where Madison Square Garden holds sway, as a site for the Schmeling-Walker fight, the only one the German seems disposed to make at the moment, leaves only Los Angeles as a possible scene for a championship match this winter.

Lewis, meanwhile, declared he had closed on terms with managers of Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, and Bat Battalino, featherweight titleholder, for a 10-round bout in Chicago late in January.

MULDOON ILL, IN HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The condition of William Muldoon, 86-year-old member of the New York State Athletic Commission, today was reported as satisfactory at Post-Graduate Hospital, where he is a patient with an unannounced ailment.

His nurse said he had spent a "comfortable night" and was cheerful.

Dr. Joseph C. McCarthy is making a thorough study of the veteran's condition and has not announced his findings.

FELL DOWN STAIRWAY

Until three years ago, Muldoon, for the last 30 years the owner and manager of a health institute and since 1921 a member of the New York State Athletic Commission, never knew what it was to be ill. Then he contracted neuritis in one shoulder. While still suffering from that, he fell 15 feet down a stairway of the railway station at White Plains, N. Y., and was severely shaken up.

He celebrated his eighty-third birthday that year, May 25, 1928, in bed for the first time in his life.

HAS BEEN ACTIVE

Muldoon has experienced 86 years of as active a life as man ever lived. He has been Greco-Roman wrestling champion of the world, New York policeman, Shakespearean actor, trainer of John L. Sullivan for a time and boxing writer.

Hundreds of stories have been told of his early life. Ed Van Every wrote a book about him; there was a song "Muldoon, the Solid Man," although both its author and Muldoon denied he was its inspiration; he is a never-yielding foe of tobacco and is credited with inspiring the ban on smoking during boxing bouts in Madison Square Garden.

HARPER WINS TITLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Robert B. Harper, of Denver, Col., last night won the national amateur three-cushion billiard championship here by defeating Joseph A. Hall, of San Francisco, 150 to 140, in 194 innings in three nights of play.

WOTAN GIVEN TOP WEIGHT

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Wotan, Ed Haughton's consistent handicap star, has been allotted top weight of 118 pounds in the list of weights announced for the Christmas handicap at the Jefferson Park racetrack.

Twenty-four horses have been named for the stake, which is at a mile for all ages.

Wotan will be giving away eight pounds to Quarter Deck, Supreme Sweet and Tannery, which are grouped at 110, the closest weight to him. Wotan won the Thanksgiving handicap, and his only other start at Jefferson Park.

GENEVA TOSSERS COP

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 24.—Geneva College cagers had little difficulty in swamping the Youngstown Y. M. C. A. five, 34 to 17, here last night. The initial half ended 21-3 with Geneva in the lead.

TULANE WORKS ON COAST

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Dubious as to the ability of his team to uphold the prestige of the South in Rose Tournament play, Coach Bernie Bierman yesterday brought 35 of his Tulane gridiron Greenies into town to make final preparations for the football clash with the University of Southern California on New Year's Day.

Easterners Drill

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—With a short but snappy workout in driving rain, eastern football stars who will play in the annual East-West charity game here New Year's Day completed a round of activities yesterday that included a visit to the shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital and attendance at a luncheon.

BEARS BEACH ATLANTA

ATLANTA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Coach Navy Bill Ingram and his California football team rode into Atlanta this morning with a burst of rain which broke up drills for a stiff session in preparation for the Saturday charity contest with Georgia Tech. The Golden Bears, three full teams and three extras, came here from New Orleans, where they stopped for a two-hour workout yesterday en route from Berkeley.

GEORGIA TECH WORKS

ATLANTA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Assistant Coach Bobby Dodd, former backfield star at the University of Tennessee, gave his Georgia Tech passers and receivers a long session yesterday in preparation for Saturday's game with California in Atlanta.

Perry, Oakmont High Fives Win

Perry High won from Bellevue High, 26 to 13, in their basketball conflict yesterday afternoon.

Oakmont came through with a 13-12 victory over Arnold, and South Hills won from Wilkinsburg, 25 to 22.

TWO SOCCER TILTS TOMORROW

INTERNATIONAL GAME CARDED TOMORROW

By TOM BIRNS

Soccer fans have two interesting games scheduled for the Christmas Day entertainment. At South Park an international match featuring American-born and foreign-born teams will clash. This game is to be staged in the afternoon. In the morning Pittsburgh Rovers oppose the Baltimore All-Stars of Baltimore, Md., at 10:30.

The international game is expected to attract the big crowd of the day. Johnny Jaap will make his first appearance in this district since his return from Scotland and his playing days in the American League. He will be at center forward for the foreign-born aggregation.

This game will bring into action the two greatest center forwards ever to play in the district. Opposing Jaap will be Buff Donnelli, Morgan star, who has curtailed his soccer appearances since his coaching days began at Duquesne University.

The field is in fine shape and plenty of parking space is available.

The Baltimore team comes here with an excellent reputation. The outfit is composed of former high school players.

In the Central loop four games are to be played Saturday. Inasmuch as the leaders do not come together, however, little interest is expected to be shown. Unless Westinghouse musters enough strength to beat Clan, Douglas

MORRYS TRIP FORESTERS

The Morrys came through with a 35-to-17 triumph over the Foresters in their West Penn League basketball battle last night.

St. Joseph's won from St. Michael's, 27 to 18, in the Catholic Lyceum circuit, while Beaver Falls defeated Ellwood City, 49-32, in the Beaver County League.

In independent contests the Rankin C. C. nosed out the Etna Elks, 26-24. Trinity Cathedral Angels won from the Anan Five, 53-24. Frank Ferris five upset the Briskeys, 54 to 49. L. F. Burkes beat 176th Artillery, 28-27, and the Brentwood Pirates romped from P. N. A., 33 to 23.

Wilmerding Y. took Downtown Y., 57-38. Holy Trinity beat the Cooks, 25-21. Jo-Jo toppled Knights of St. George, 46-31. Pittsburgh Prep won from Universal, 80-22, and Rankin Center nosed out the Etna Elks, 26-24.

Carnera to Tour In South America

GENOA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, huge Italian heavyweight boxer, has announced he plans to make a tour of South America after resting for about two months in Italy.

LEAGUE PROPOSED

Representatives from the Carnegie Tech, Temple, Dartmouth, New York University, Penn State and West Virginia will meet in New York next Tuesday to discuss the formation of a Eastern Basketball Conference, it was announced yesterday. Such a conference would limit the number of games each team would play and it is hoped that the loops will be clean of all semi-pro stars.

Nevis and Bill Argue With Each Other About Their Friends

CHAPTER VII

Bill responded to Nevis' charges in the routine manner. First by an angry denial, working himself up into a magnificent rage of reproach and pronouncing himself not guilty in a ringing and entirely sincerely innocent voice. And then, of course, by stepping out of the witness box and taking his strong right—or is it left?—hand from the matrimonial Bible and admitting his sin. But not remorsefully. Rather take-it-or-leave-it, rather with defiance. "Yes, I did and what are you going to do about it? And adding a few categorical cold facts in case Nevis, at the breakfast table, with Hari whispering to Kari in the pantry, had never heard of them before. Such as: Men were men and women were women, which was open to argument, but got by. And such as: Drinks were drinks and a lot goes on on club verandas which is all in the spirit of modern times and good clean fun. And such as: Boys will be boys and why not? And most effective of all: Besides it didn't mean a so-and-so thing.

She had that to think about.

Tears of course on her part, and remorse at last on his. And promises. It will never happen again, darling. Nevis, you know I don't give a tinker's damn for any woman in the world but yourself.

Reconciliation. The triumph of sacred over profane love.

Only she didn't forget. Only she saw all about her much the same sort of thing happening. Not with the Hunts. They were, she decided, as happy as clams. Not perhaps with the Carlyles, though she wasn't awfully sure. But with lots of others. It wasn't a crime to kiss another woman's husband or another man's wife. Sometimes it led to a sort of all-change-partners arrangement. Sometimes it did not. However—

OLIVE SENDS VERSE

Well, perhaps it didn't mean anything. Bill appeared to love her as much as ever and Olive did not drop her eyes before her steady gaze the next time they met. She grew to think perhaps it didn't mean anything at all, the whole added arrangement.

Bill had his own private office now. Once when Nevis was in town and was waiting for him to take her to lunch she answered the telephone on his desk, the secretary being momentarily absent. "Bill" asked Olive in her ear.

"No. Nevis."

Olive was not abashed. She had come up, she said, and wondered if Bill would feed her.

"Grand you're here too, why didn't you tell me? We could have come together. We'll all lunch."

They did.

* * *

Then Bill began to get careless about letters. Nevis found them in his bureau, in the suit she was sending to the cleaners.

Synopsis

Nevis and Bill Lancaster, young newlyweds, leave the little Pennsylvania town where they were raised and go to New York. They lease a small apartment and Bill becomes a bond salesman. As he succeeds, they take a house and entertain beyond their means to make an impression. Nevis sees little of Bill. She disapproves of their extravagance, but Bill assures her it is necessary to promote business. Then Bill meets the flirtatious Olive Blanchard, who makes no secret of her designs on him. When Nevis suggests a vacation, Bill tells her he has been invited on a big fishing trip by Mr. Bartlett, a prospective client. Nevis, furious, asks him if it was business which accounted for his attentions to Mrs. Bartlett at a party. Bill believes Nevis should help him by accepting the attentions of men they meet in a semi-social way. Nevis visits Della Hunt, a friend, and meets Harry Carter, the well known architect. A car drives up to Olive's home, across the street, and Nevis is stunned to hear Bill's and Olive's voices. Later, at a dance, Nevis sees Bill kiss Olive.

Now Go On

Not letters exactly. Quotations, mostly from the more outspoken poets. There was one which settled it—in Nevis' mind.

"Bill," wrote Olive. "I've just come across this. Isn't it—I mean, doesn't it express things—exactly."

From the Oxford Book of English Verse laboriously searched out, had Nevis only known it, and bringing a slight increase in color to Bill's face as he read. Bill, who enjoyed an off-color joke as much as the next fellow, but wasn't perhaps, quite educated up to the authentic cry of the poet and authentic expression of the inexpressible.

TURNS TO CARTER

He'd meant to destroy it. But had destroyed an "account over due" statement instead.

An anonymous poet of the perhaps Sixteenth Century had written those few touchingly poignant lines. But this was the Twentieth Century and Olive was far from anonymous. Nevis crumpled the bit of paper in her hand, smoothed it out and put it back where she had found it.

She didn't speak of it to Bill. She couldn't. But at this time she began to believe quite definitely that Bill's affair with Olive had gone beyond what seemed to be routine kissing and usual stage effects.

She began almost involuntarily to deny Bill. It was inevitable not knowing but guessing, not having what is crudely known as evidence, but believing loving him a lot and hating him as much and hating herself more for the doubts she couldn't possibly avoid, feeling herself soiled—if—if.

It was not to be expected that Bill would either understand or admire this attitude, nor enjoy the cheek turned to his kiss. The result was something of a tension, a nerve strain, which ended, or rather went on, in silly, almost causeless quarreling. Bill was grouchy. Nevis was remote.

And because her senses were young and fresh and ardent and because she was what her senses made her, as all of us are, she turned to a person who had not hurt her, had not betrayed nor caused her hours of wonder and question and aching, face downward on a bed in a cool room with the shades drawn and the tears soaking the best pillow cases.

Carter, of course.

And so if Bill was saying gloomily to Olive: Nevis does not understand me. Of course she doesn't, you poor boy. Nevis was saying to Carter: Men—make me sick.

He agreed that they could and should. He held her hand over a discreet tea table in town. At an hotel. Later he held it over an even more discreet table in the penthouse. They were alone. A little later he kissed her and because he did it with brilliant gentleness and genuine tenderness she cried a little on his shoulder and presently kissed him back again, as sweetly and as frankly as a child, and asked for the loan of his handkerchief.

He was very much in love with her and perfectly sincere about it. That was his danger, his own peril and his peril for women. He was always sincere. When it was over, it was over, and no hard feelings and no one irreparably hurt—as far as he was concerned, no real harm done. But while he loved, he was immersed in it and the world could go by. And generally did.

But paused to make comments en route.

Bill said abruptly: "You are seeing too much of Carter. People are talking. I don't like it. I won't have it. You'll cut it out at once, do you hear me?"

She replied evenly: "Certainly I hear you. Anyone could within half a mile. I might remind you though that people are talking about you and Olive."

More fools they, then. That's different, anyhow.

Nevis said, carelessly: "What if I do meet Harry in town now and then? Everyone does it. You meet Olive. Lots of people meet other people. It doesn't mean anything."

"I'm not so sure of that. You're my wife," he shouted, "and I won't stand for it."

Sublime and unreasonable illogic of men. She was amused by it, fleetingly—"and they call women inconsistent!" She said, merely: "Don't make yourself ridiculous."

He made threats, he issued ultimatums. She said sweetly: "If I don't see Harry any more, will you cut out Olive?"

"That's different," he answered again. "I can't go around cutting out women—what a darned fool thing to say—here in our own crowd. What will people say? You are talking through your hat."

It ended there. She told herself: "If he isn't willing to give up Olive, why should I offend and hurt Harry, who is my friend?"

There was no reason, she thought, why she couldn't have an affair with Harry Carter. She used the word, mentally, in its most elastic sense. She had no definite definitions of technicalities. An "affair," that was all. Lunch, tea, dinner, gifts of flowers and books—well, it had already progressed that far—long discussions of life and love—a kiss or two, perhaps. She had no cut and dried plans, no blue prints, so to speak. She didn't stop to consider that when one has said A, roundly, it is difficult to evade saying B. She simply thought, vaguely: "I won't give up my friendship. Why should I not be entitled to the same freedom as Bill?"

But by mid-summer she was deeply involved, more interested than she realized and finding the comfortable absorption of the other man in herself growing necessary, almost vital. She had drifted very far from Bill and knew it. His fault, she thought.

And as for Carter, the chase was becoming a little long drawn out. There, in Nevis' own house one summer afternoon, while Bill was on the links, he said to her definitely: "It can't go on like this, my dear. I'm flesh and blood after all. If you care for me, and I think you do, you'll understand. I love you, Nevis. You've meant, you mean something to me which I swear no other woman has ever meant. You know my life. I can't beg you, as I would if I were younger, to leave Bill and come away with me. I have to think of Kay because of the boys. But I can promise you if you will permit our friendship to become something closer, dearer—that you won't be hurt by it in any way. I loathe discussing practicalities with you. But we can be very careful. Things can be arranged. No one will ever know."

She said, "No—no, Harry—please don't talk about it—" She thought, "Why not?"

After he had gone, designedly losing his control enough to snatch her in his arms—after all Hari was out and Kari off on his own pursuits—and to kiss her hotly and ardently, she went upstairs to her room and looked at herself in the mirror, her shaken lips and shining eyes, frightened eyes, and listening for Bill's step, thought, half terrified, half defiant, "Well, why not?"

"Why not?" thought Nevis, as Bill came galloping upstairs, and burst into the room like a blonde thunderbolt.

Bill, dancing attendance on rich middle-aged wives; Bill, discovered kissing Olive Blanchard in the appropriate moonlight; Bill, living far beyond their means, even if he was the best bond salesman in the Burton organization, was not the Bill with whom, two years previously she had walked to an altar under the sympathetic eyes of half a Pennsylvania town, and whom she had promised to love, honor and obey. Well, love him she did; and always would; honor him, she could no longer; and as for obedience, that was ridiculous in this day and age. Perhaps if their original plan of life had not miscarried them to New York and Westlynne, perhaps if they had remained home where possibly they belonged, things would have been different. As it was she saw no particular reason why she should not indulge in a discreet and stimulating flirtation with Harry Carter. It was safe enough, Harry was married; so was she. And, from her recent observations, a good three-quarters of the married people around her were indulging themselves, some innocently and some not so innocently, on the side. The parsley and olives of the matrimonial dish. Olives is good she thought.

But Bill was full of exclamations. He said, tempestuously:

"Listen . . . what do you think? . . . Fluff and Waterford are splitting! He's been seeing Maida Carey—she's on the stage, you know—for months, Fluff just found out. She's wild. She's going to Reno at once."

Nevis said, blankly, incredulous:

"I don't believe it!"

"Well, you'd better. Sam told me. He ought to know. He's her brother, isn't he? The old man is all cut up about it. The office is like an undertakers' emporium today. Fluff came down to see Sam and her father. She had a lawyer with her. They sent for Waterford. Gosh—I saw him when he came in. He hardly spoke to me. Big row in Burton's private office. You could hear it a block away. Fluff has one of those carrying voices, you know. And old man Burton shouts like a drill sergeant when he gets started. Hell to pay, all around!"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Thousands of children in all parts of Pittsburgh and neighboring communities flocked to the Warner theaters' big free Christmas shows today. The shows were Warner Theaters' Christmas gift to members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club and their little friends, and ended a four-day Christmas celebration at all Warner theaters.

The meetings of the 17 chapters of the Junior Komic Club last Saturday, were given over to Christmas programs put on by members of the club. At the State, Washington, there was a 20-minute program of music by 12 little musicians. Taking part were Miss Betty Thompson, directress; John Peddicord, Carl Hamilton, Adam Polys, Moyne Moninger, Catherine Shank, Edith Bales, Roger Scott, Charles Higgins, Ruth Johnson, Stanley Wolfe and Rose Marino.

SOLOS RENDERED

Vocal or instrumental solos were given by Donna Hilberry, Wanda Iams and Betty Hilberry, Betty Laughmon, Peggy Claffy, Jane Smith, Donna Fay Walker, Alma June Myers, Virginia Ravella, Jasperine Young, Betty Jane Anderson, Thais Bowers, Charles Hartzell, Anna Mae Cushing, Janet Louis and Margaret Laughman, Betty Jane Armstrong, Virginia Hinerman, Mary Ann Dalton, Gale Hartzell, Rosamond and Margaret Couts, Madeline Borchalk, Rosemary and Matthew DeAngelo, Patricia Metzner, Virginia Picio, Jean Reed, John Galarsky and Betty George. Peggy Gallaher gave a clever reading.

The Christmas program at the Plaza led to the discovery of two very promising child entertainers. They are Paula Pyle and Charles Provost, and their numbers prompted members of Plaza chapter to loud applause.

Tomorrow will be the day that we have been looking forward to so long—Christmas! The Sun-Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club wishes all its members and friends the happiest Christmas of their young lives.

IT'S BEAUTIFUL! AND IT AFFECTS OTHERS TOO. I HAD A WOMAN CALL ME UP TODAY WHO HASN'T SPOKEN TO ME FOR MONTHS. SHE WAS JUST AS SWEET AS COULD BE AND SOMEHOW, I KNOW SHE MEANT MOST OF THE NICE THINGS SHE SAID.
I ALWAYS PITY THOSE PEOPLE WHO ARE AFRAID TO BE THROWN OFF THEIR GUARD, EVEN DURING THE HOLIDAYS.
WOULDN'T IT BE WONDERFUL IF FOLKS HAD THIS SPIRIT ALL THE YEAR ROUND! IMAGINE! WHAT A CHANGE IT WOULD MAKE IN SOME OF THE WOMEN I KNOW.
OLD SANTA CLAUS REMINDS US THAT THERE'S SOME GOOD IN EVERYBODY, IF YOU'VE GOT THE TIME AND PATIENCE TO LOOK FOR IT.
WE ALL HAVE FAULTS TOO. ALL OF US. BUT THE LAST TIME IN THE WORLD A PERSON IS WILLING TO ADMIT IT IS WHEN YOU'RE TRYING TO REASON WITH THEM. EVERY SO OFTEN I GET SO UTTERLY DISCOURAGED ABOUT THAT.
PEOPLE ARE IMPROVING ALL THE TIME. I SEE THAT EVERY DAY, AND WE NEVER SHOULD BE TOO BUSY TO OFFER A BIT OF HELP EITHER. NEVER!

NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the apartment house

Everybody was stirring, including a prohibition enforcement department souse

Who might better have remained home with his wife and kidneys, I think,

But he apparently figured it was his privilege to snoop around and bum himself a drink.

He polished his badge, then rang each apartment bell,

And when admitted, rubbed his hands and exclaimed, "Well, well, well!

"If any one in this here apartment is in illegal possession of bourbon and rye,

"They better pour the evidence in a glass. Thanks. Here's mud in your eye!"

And then, in a flash, he'd tip toe out the door,

And go right back to some apartment he had called on before.

Consequently he was able to make a long report to his chief

In which he wept into considerable detail to express the belief

That the particular district on which he was assigned to keep an eye,

Was, thanks to his personal efforts, by now practically dry.

Pinchot's Wise Course

The Governor Has Done a Prudent Thing in Not Vetoing the Talbot Bill.

Gov. Pinchot has adopted a wise procedure in consenting to let the Talbot bill become law without his signature.

Pinchot is of the opinion that the bill, appropriating $10,000,000 from the commonwealth's general fund to the poor boards of the various counties for relief of the unemployed, is unconstitutional. He has been given an opinion to that effect by Attorney General Schnader.

The Governor might therefore have justification for vetoing the measure. He has shown prudence in refraining from doing so.

The Attorney General's opinion after all does not have the force of a Supreme Court decision. And there are other attorneys, including the distinguished George Wharton Pepper, who disagree with Mr. Schnader and hold that the present industrial depression is one of the emergencies that the writers of the Constitution had in mind when they said that the state might use its police power to do things not permissible ordinarily. Under authority of this provision of the Constitution, Mr. Pepper thinks, the Supreme Court will hold the Talbot bill constitutional.

The chance is worth taking at any rate, since the Legislature has done scarcely anything else to relieve unemployment distress.

It is gratifying to note that there are members of the Legislature who are not satisfied with what it has done and who plan to do something more.

The meeting of Senators and Representatives of the western counties, held here last night to discuss the matter, may bring results.

Priest Turns Tables On Governor Hartley

Father Flanagan's reply to Gov. Hartley, of Washington, dealing with the sentence of life imprisonment imposed upon a boy not yet in his teens, is a humanitarian document.

It is also a model of polite yet sincere and spirited rebuke, for, while it throbs with passionate sympathy and prayerful solicitation for a youthful victim of unreasonable punishment, it is as restrained in censure as it is righteous in indignation.

There are some passages of plain speaking, but they are mild as compared with what might have been said, and to the end of his reply Father Flanagan is inclined to the charitable belief that Gov. Hartley in denouncing him and his motives has been ill-advised and misinformed.

In upholding the sentence of life imprisonment for a boy of 12, Gov. Hartley said that experts had advised him that the youth is beyond being saved and, when Father Flanagan asked for the boy's release and offered to care for and train him, the Governor stated that the purpose of the request was to obtain nationwide publicity for Father Flanagan's boys' home.

That insult was the small-minded politician speaking the only language that such politicians understand. Publicity is of the breath of their nostrils and they cannot imagine anybody doing anything for any other reason.

Father Flanagan has no such motive. He is a high-minded and splendidly worthy man, conducting a greatly needed and very greatly beneficial institution, and it is an outrage that he should be attacked and his motives questioned simply because he happens to disagree with Gov. Hartley on the proper treatment of a degenerate youth.

According to the very best sociological and penological thought, it is Gov. Hartley who is old-fashioned and reactionary and un-Christian, if not uncivilized, and it is Father Flanagan who is modern and progressive, following alike the Gospel of Christ and the light of modern thought and civilization.

While the Governor is still floundering in the dark ages of punishment as the only cure for crime, the priest sees the light of modern scientific criminology as a gleam of the light of the world.

Convention Trips Banned

Such Journeys May Well Be Forbidden During Hard Times, But Not as a Permanent Policy.

City Council has decided not to pay the expenses of city officials who attend conventions next year of municipal officers doing the same kind of work.

The decision was reached after approving the claims of two deputy fire chiefs for $233 each as reimbursement for expenditures they incurred in attending a convention of fire chiefs in Havana.

City officials of Pittsburgh attend many such conventions annually. No doubt some of these meetings are more in the nature of junkets than anything else, and the taxpayers who pay the expenses of the local delegates gain nothing from them. But it would not be fair to generalize and say that all or most of these conventions are unprofitable to the city.

Studious officials who pay attention to the proceedings may bring back ideas that will save the city many times the cost of their expenses. The exchange of ideas and experiences by officials from numerous cities doing the same kind of work and confronted with the same kind of problems is often useful.

As an emergency measure Council has done well in placing a ban on such convention trips next year at the city's expense. But it should not be made a permanent policy.

Roving Constables

There Is Encouragement in the Plan of the Ethical Officers to Attack the Nuisance.

The right of constables to leave their bailiwicks and go about the county seeking petty violations of the law through which they and the squires with whom they work may profit is to be attacked in the courts.

The Constables' Beneficial and Protective Association has decided to institute a test case.

The association considers the practices of the roving constables unethical and believes them to be illegal.

If they are not illegal, they should be made so by act of the Legislature.

The roving constables are a nuisance and a menace. Profiting financially by the discovery of infractions of the dog license laws and other petty technical offenses, they are under constant temptation to find such offenses where they do not exist, and to engage in extortion and blackmail. The Criminal Court records show a number of cases in which roving constables have yielded to this temptation.

As a general rule there is no good reason why a constable should officiate outside of his own bailiwick.

Bankers Give Us Light

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Democratic leadership in the House of Representatives deserves congratulations on the manner in which the majority conducted itself last week during the rather hectic fight on the moratorium. The more sensational features were reserved for the Republicans, who insisted on washing their dirty linen in public, and apparently there is much of it. It was a prominent Republican from Pennsylvania, but recently honored by his party with the chairmanship of one of the outstanding committees of the House, who made the slashing attack upon the President with the charge that he had sold out the country, and the attacks of a personal character on McFadden came from the Republican side. Somehow in the scrimmage the "high hat" of the Republican was knocked off, but every Democrat had his hand in his pocket. Charges the most serious were passed back and forth on the Republican side, and Representative Watkin served notice that unless these Kilkenny cat fights of the minority would cease to interfere with the nation's business he would ask for an investigation of all the charges.

Not Loaded Down With German Bonds

The appearance before the Senate committee of Mr. Lamont, of the house of Morgan, and Mr. Mitchell, of the National City Bank, should have some salutary effects. Rumor had bruited it abroad that some of the large banks were "loaded down" with German securities, and that the collapse of Germany might prove disastrous to these institutions. Everyone has heard this talk. The effect has not been to create confidence. The big bankers who were "dragged" before the committee owe a debt of appreciation to the Senators who summoned them. They have been able to convince the country that the rumors are false; that none of the great financial institutions mentioned in the gossip are so loaded down as to cause them serious embarrassment whatever may happen. This is well worth while. The Senate has done for them what a statement from them to the public might have accomplished long ago.

It appears that these German securities are now in the hands of private investors throughout the country who bought them. The banks that sponsored them and passed them on to the country may feel some responsibility to the investors, but they themselves are secure.

Reparations Do Not Figure in Loans

The distinguished bankers were very chary about the proposal to transfer the debts of other peoples to the backs of American taxpayers. The impression conveyed that they had little or nothing to do with the moratorium will not wash. The late Dwight Morrow was on hand in the White House at the time, and for some time before, and if, as is still insisted, Europe would have collapsed or staggered without the moratorium, there is no reason why the bankers should deny their inspiration.

Nor is it possible to believe that these two distinguished bankers are not more than passively interested in bringing about the transfer—not the "cancellation"—of the debts.

Mr. Mitchell was more outspoken on the subject than Mr. Lamont. The former frankly said he expected to see a scaling down, if not a complete transfer of the debts owing us. In making something of an argument in favor of it he dwelt at some length on the great burden of the reparations on Germany; on the plan to pass the burden on from generation to generation, and he concluded that the youth of Germany ultimately will rebel.

We have never thought that Germany should be asked to bear the whole burden of the war; have always thought the reparations were too heavy; but when we loaned money to the 14 nations allied against Germany there was no suggestion or thought that the payment of the debt was conditional on the payment of all the reparations.

* * *

Why Should Unborn Americans Pay Debt!

By implication Mr. Mitchell would have us believe that the American people are responsible for the reparations—we, who asked and received not one penny of reparations; we, who neither asked nor took one inch of German territory; we, who probably prevented the dismemberment of Germany.

The impression one gets from Mr. Mitchell is that if the nations that demand and receive the reparations drive Germany to desperation we, in some mysterious way, are responsible. If the purpose is to prevent a rebellion of the German youth would it not be more to the point to ask the nations that exact the reparations in full to scale them down? Why should American youth take all the burden and carry it through the years? Senator Reed put this question to the banker:

"Now, why should the progeny of Americans who had nothing to do with the war, the progeny of Americans who were not even alive, pay this war debt, and progeny of the people who started it go scot free? Why is not the psychology that is going to grow up in this country by refusing to cancel these debts going to be a complete checkmate to the psychology abroad that wants to have these debts forgiven?"

There is not much of an answer to that.

Generosity Creates Impression of 'Suckers'

The truth is that our extraordinary generosity has created the impression that we Americans are the "suckers" that Bernard Shaw calls us. No such proposition as that of taking over the debts of other nations and putting them on the backs of Frenchmen or Italians, for illustration, would ever be made; least of all considered. Should Laval sponsor any such sacrifice for France, how long would the Laval ministry stand?

No one wants to wreck the big banks; but now we have it that the banks are not endangered by these private loans to Germany. The securities are now in the hands of private investors. Surely it is not to be proposed that all the people shall be taxed for many years to the end that investors in foreign securities shall not lose on their investment. There are millions of Americans who have lost on American investments, and no one is proposing that all Americans shall be taxed to make good the losses of investors on the market here. Create the impression that if Americans lose on foreign securities the American people will be taxed to make it good, but if they lose on American investments they lose, and it will be difficult to float American securities in the future as long as foreign securities may be had.

The transfer of the debts to American shoulders is as dead as Alexander the Great.

Marry-Go-Round

Everybody's Santa Claus

Everybody believes in Santa Claus, these days! That is, everybody except the children, who have been told that he is only a "myth," and strictly forbidden to believe in him.

* * *

But, barring the Tiny Tots, everybody appears to be standing around, "waiting for Santa Claus." Waiting for the Big Surprise, the Big Break, the Big Windfall, that will drop out of the heavens right into his stocking. Never was the world so full of "Micawbers" cheerfully waiting for "something to turn up."

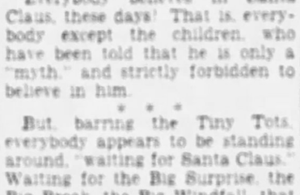
You might think that the Lambs of Wall street, who woke up to find a switch in their stockings, one morning two years ago, would have lost their quaint faith in old Kris Kingle. But you will still find men, here and there, who fondly believe that Santa Claus will pop out of the ticker with a lot of nice big dividends. Oh, goody, goody, goody!

* * *

Every young girl fondly hopes that some day, somehow, somewhere, a benevolent Santa will magically produce that Peerless Paragon, who looks like a movie idol, dances like a fawn, makes love like John Barrymore and money like John D.—and is pining to MARRY.

* * *

And many a gilded Old Girl sees Santa Claus disguised as Cupid and secretly believes that if she sticks to her diet and her daily dozen, rejuvenation and young love will be her reward from Santa.



But to the gigolo it is the Gilded Mamma, who looks like Santa Claus, with a pack of gold nuggets in her change purse. And to the gold-digger, Santa is a plump elderly gentleman who prefers blondes.

* * *

And for the elderly gentleman, there is a Santa Claus, who will, surely, surely bring him a sweet, unmercenary young thing who will marry him "for love."

* * *

You SEE how it is! Everybody believes in the IMPROBABLE—even you and I!

* * *

Your Santa Claus may be 'way out in Hollywood, just waiting to discover your beauty or your talent. And mine may be an editor or a publisher in New York, who will give me that big idea for a "best seller."

* * *

But the point is, that whether Santa Claus is a "myth" or not, we all DO believe in him; and that's what gives us the heart and the courage to "carry on."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The Grim Reaper made costly sacrifices among notable New Yorkers the passing year—Edison, Morrow, Baker, Bowman and innumerable other leaders in special fields. I have myself suffered the loss of five gifted personal friends in that time.

What has impressed many is the softer attitude toward death the past few years. Whether the aftermath of the war, or a stronger belief in immortality, is not apparent. Certainly there is greater complacency among those touched by such grief.

Seldom is there weeping and wailing at funeral services. Nor swooning mourners falling prostrate at the bier. It is as though death might be the gentle opening and closing of a door through which one passes to a greater consciousness.

Recently a gentleman in a hospital facing the "last enemy" sent this note to his family: "My final request is that none display grief at the funeral. My reason rebels at extinction. I am merely going away a little while."

Perhaps the greatest solace of the generation came from Charles Frohman, on a sinking ship, declaring: "Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life." And Edison, in coma, murmuring: "I see a beautiful land over there," gave courage, renewed impetus, and ameliorated much doubt.

Mourning habiliments as an outward symbol of inner despair have almost vanished. Shops devoted to such lugubrious costumes have closed during the past few years. Even Harlem is discarding hearts shaped in crepe on the sleeves for its dead.

What might be turned into one of Alexander Woollcott's boo stories but was, of course, a coincidence, took place an hour ago. Starting through a World Almanac for historical information, I was, for no reason, attracted by a line that William McKinley was the twenty-fifth President. A minute later the phone rang. A writing friend in New Jersey inquired if I happened to know what President McKinley was. As quick as that I screamed: "The twenty-fifth." Adding: "Any time you get stuck, call on the old master."

* * *

Upon another auspicious occasion what appeared to be surprising knowledge was coincidence. As a reporter I was waiting in a famous man's library for an interview. On a table was a volume by a profound writer. Opening it, the first line read: "Magic and science seem to go hand in hand." Later he remarked that he had just been reading the work of a great thinker on evolution and pointed to the volume on the table. "I'll never forget his opening line." I fibbed and quoted: "Magic and science seem to go hand in hand." He verified it and until he passed away sent me hastily scribbled notes to read this and that ponderous book. He thought I was a whiz. And wouldn't it be perfectly killing if he were right. Maybe I'm one of nature's noblemen—in spats at that.

Wall street no longer refers to a seat on the Stock Exchange. They now call it merely "a squat."

* * *

A celebrated dog trainer writes: "Let your dog know you realize you know more than he." Knowing dogs as well as people, that sounds as egotistical as all get out.

* * *

My culinary tastes at intervals slough to zero and I like to drop into stool and counter spots featuring a smudgy counterman and a huddle of gummy catsup bottles and mustard pots. A sprinkle of sawdust heightens the charm. Such places serve the lustiest in hamburger sandwiches with raw onions. On Eighth avenue the other night, after theater, was an elysium catering to small time vaudeville folk and bearing a name as lazily fanciful as "Dreamthorp." Not quite that but near it!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Christmas Day—

The birthday of a poor man.

Remember the old story? Perhaps you never heard it . . . plenty of Americans haven't! It's lovely. Listen—

"Now it came to pass in those days, there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled . . . And all went to enroll themselves, every one to his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth . . . to Bethlehem . . . to enroll himself with Mary, who was great with child.

"And it came to pass, while they were there, the days were fulfilled that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first born son; and she wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger because there was no room for them in the inn.

"And there were shepherds in the same country, abiding in the field and keeping watch by night over their flock. And suddenly an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of the Lord shone about them and they were sore afraid.

"But the angel said unto them—'Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be all the people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour who is Christ the Lord. And this is the sign unto you—YE SHALL FIND A BABE WRAPPED IN SWADDLING CLOTHES AND LYING IN A MANGER.'

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying—'Glory to God in the highest—and on earth, peace among men—'

"And . . . when the angels went away from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another—'Let us go unto Bethlehem and see this thing . . . which the Lord hath made known unto us.' And they came with haste and found both Mary and Joseph, and the Babe, lying in the manger."

The story of a poor man—

The story of a babe born in the manger, because there was no room for his mother in the inn nor any money to pay for better space.

The story of a boy who grew up in poverty . . . eating the lentil soup and black bread of the poor . . . wearing the cheap, coarse clothes his mother spun . . . working beside his father at a carpenter's bench . . . sharing a peasant's hardships and a peasant's fear—

The story of a man who spent his life with other working men . . . who found his friends and followers amongst fishermen and farmers, beggars, blind men, lepers and prostitutes . . . who taught the truth on lonely gypsy trails, in squalid alleys—

The story of a man who died for common men, hung on a wooden cross between two thieves.

Christmas Day—the birthday of a working man.

Not to the proud and the powerful . . . not to those whose eyes were blinded by riches and might . . . but to common people did Jesus come.

To a poor carpenter and his gentle wife—

To tired, lonely shepherds huddled on cold hills—

To simple eyes that still could see a Star—

To simple ears that still could hear a Song—

To simple hearts that still could cradle Love—

Was Jesus born.

Isn't It So?

A good presence is a letter of recommendation.

Marriage never fails to prove whether or not love at first sight is the real thing.

Many a man has more money than brains who has a mighty small balance in bank.

Another excellent cure for insomnia is to get out of bed at 4 a. m. and follow the plow all day.

The difference between opinions and convictions is this, that men hold opinions and convictions hold men.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may be a "joiner" who gives little time to the organizations with which you are affiliated.

As a result you get little good or inspiration from any of them.

You think it necessary to belong and were pleased to be asked to join and your ego was satisfied as soon as you were accepted, but you do not give anything that will benefit the members beyond paying your yearly dues.

You sometimes say that you get little out of them, but it really is because you do not put any of yourself into them.

In all worthwhile orders there is much to benefit the member.

But if there is not consistently regular attendance the beauty of the precepts exemplified is lost and the suggestions not personally realized.

To belong to fewer orders and understand them more perfectly is wise.

Most men have too many fraternal interests.

They attend the meetings so infrequently that they really do not get enough out of them to pay for the outlay, but that is their own fault.

There is too much dead timber in practically every organization.

Lodges or orders would be better off without those who merely pay dues.

They are not of benefit to the organizations.
